

Choking dust hampering cleanup in flood areas

PINEVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Less than two weeks ago, three raging rivers threatened life and property in eastern Kentucky. Now choking clouds hinder operations to clean up the sodden debris left by receding waters.

"The dust is terrible," Pineville City Judge Bob Madon told Gov. Julian Carroll, who on Wednesday made his third helicopter tour of Appalachian towns ravaged by the floods.

At Harlan, state police Lt. Tom Rakestraw told the governor, "Our boys directing traffic are wearing surgical masks. They just about have to breathe."

The state ordered delivery of 2,000 surgical masks to Pineville.

In the dusty streets of Pineville, Harlan, South Williamson and Pikeville, as well as other Appalachian towns, workers shoveled and swept debris and mud from houses and boarded-up stores.

As he splashed through the muddy interior of a drug store in downtown Pineville, Carroll said, "These people have a big backbone."

A brown line on the wall showed that the waters of the Cumberland River had stood about a foot below the ceiling at the crest of the flood, which left six dead and caused at least $100 million in damage in Kentucky.

"Just in east Pineville, there were 14 homes washed away," said Bell County Judge Willie Hendrickson. "Trailers were picked up and broken like matchsticks."

Of Pineville's 2,800 residents, 2,200 were forced from their homes by the flood, he said.

Another stop on Carroll's tour was the federal disaster relief center at Harlan High School where hundreds of flood victims lined up to ask government workers about disaster help.

At South Williamson, on the West Virginia border, officials said thousands of people were forced from their homes along a 40-mile stretch of the Tug Fork of the Big Sandy River.

Ray Roberts, administrator of the Appalachian Regional Hospital at South Williamson, said the hospital is sheltering 50 flood refugees and serving 2,500 meals a day to flood victims. Other shelters have been set up in schools and churches.

The number of West Virginia families registered by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration (FDAA) reached 5,000 about noon Wednesday, according to Henry Selib, spokesman for the FDAA.

Zumwalt tells Israelis to be prepared to 'go it alone'

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The chief of U.S. naval operations during the 1973 Arab-Israeli war says Israel's experience with the United States in that war should convince the Jewish nation not to depend on the protection of other nations.

Retired Adm. Elmo Zumwalt told a meeting of senior Israeli officers Wednesday that the United States pressured Israel to lift its siege of the Egyptian 3rd Army on the east side of the Suez Canal because of a Soviet ultimatum.

"In the light of that experience," said Zumwalt, "... I think that Israel would be very ill-advised indeed ever to take the commitment of others as a substitute for her own capabilities."

He said the Soviet ultimatum "made it implicitly clear that unless the United States ordered Israel to release the Egyptian 3rd Army, the Soviet Union would go in and do the job whether or not the United States forces sought to prevent it."

The United States had no choice but "to do exactly what was done ... to go on our own strategic nuclear alert three weeks after the Soviet alert but simultaneously to inform Moscow that we had carried out their ultimatum," he said.

Officials and newspapers in Israel accused the United States at the time of submitting to Soviet pressure and forcing Israel to agree to a cease-fire and to lift its blockade of the trapped 20,000-man Egyptian force.

Zumwalt said Israel must maintain its military capability at the peak because "readiness of Israeli forces is so critical to the maintenance of deterrence in the Middle East and because the American public, unlike the Israeli public ... is much more complacent because it does not face the immediacy" of the threat of attack.

Carter decides to scrap $50 tax rebate proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has decided to scrap his controversial plan to give $50 tax rebates to 200 million Americans because he is convinced the economy will improve without the stimulus, administration sources said today.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell indicated that the report is true and that Carter's proposed $2 billion investment tax credit is being scrapped as well.

"If you withdraw the rebate, you couldn't very well not withdraw the business tax benefit also," Powell said. "If you don't need the one, you don't need the other."

It was learned Carter made the final decision to drop the rebate plan Wednesday night. A formal announcement of the action was expected today.

Although the rebate plan was known to be in trouble in Congress, sources insisted this was not the main reason Carter decided to withdraw it. They acknowledged, however, that it is likely that many people will interpret the decision that way.

Critics of the plan, including Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns, had warned that the plan would fuel inflation.

The rebate plan, which would have given taxpayers a total of about $10 billion more to spend this year, was the central element in Carter's $31 billion economic stimulus program.

Carter was said to have received strong recommendations to drop the rebate from Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and Budget Director Bert Lance.

"They told him the economy was looking strong enough without it ... Most economic indicators except for the stock market are looking stronger," a source said.

"Everybody will be talking about political considerations, but Blumenthal and Lance were saying this should be done on the basis of economics," he said.

It is possible that by dropping the rebates now, Carter will improve his chances of getting congressional acquiescence to the President's aim of halting about 30 water projects around the country.

Congressional opponents to the water project cutbacks had threatened to vote against the rebate unless Carter changed his mind on the projects, but such a threat would be empty now.

Carter and his advisers originally had argued that the economy needed the boost that tax rebates would provide by putting more spending power in the hands of consumers. But critics, led by Burns, argued the rebates would do little to spur the economy, and would increase the federal deficit and add to the nation's problems of inflation.

Some other Carter economic advisers were said to be deeply split on the issue.

"This has been the subject of high-level discussions for the last couple of days," it was said.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, speaking Tuesday in Detroit, defended the rebates as important to the nation's economy. He warned, "We should not underestimate the effects on consumer confidence if they are deprived of the tax rebates that they have come to anticipate."

Blumenthal told the National Press Club on Wednesday that the rebate was needed to further stimulate the economy.

"The economy is indeed improving ... but the rate of improvement is still too slow, and we need to find ways to achieve more rapid growth," the treasury secretary said.

Both houses of Congress are off for an Easter recess this week. The full Senate was scheduled to take up Carter's stimulus plan next week. The House approved the plan, including the rebates, in March.

The plan's chances for passage in the Senate were uncertain. All 38 Republicans were against it and Democratic support was not solid.

Body of man discovered in ditch in Chino area

The body of a man in his mid-20s, with a large gaping hole in the left side of his chin, was found lying head down in a small drainage ditch

BODY FOUND

San Bernardino County Sheriff's deputies and investigators look over the body of an unidentified man found lying face up in a drainage ditch near the Armstrong Nursery on Grove Avenue east of Chino Airport this morning.

across from the Armstrong Nursery on Grove Avenue between Merrill and Remington avenues in the Chino area this morning.

San Bernardino County homicide detectives believe the man, clad in a blue checked shirt, work pants and boots was killed sometime last night or early this morning.

The body was discovered about 5:50 a.m. by a Prado Golf Course worker while driving southbound on Grove Avenue. The golf course worker, Lupe Leon of Upland, told West End Sheriff's deputies that he was driving on the road beside the drainage ditch at dawn and noticed a pair of boots sticking up from the ditch. Leon said he stopped his car and went back to investigate. He found the man's body face up in the ditch and called deputies.

The San Bernardino Sheriff's homicide bureau was notified when investigating deputies noticed that the body had a large gaping wound of the chin. According to deputies at the scene, it appeared the man may have been shot. The actual cause of the man's death would not be known until later this morning following an autopsy.

Detectives said the man was fully clad.

The area where the body was found lays roughly between the Chino Airport and the Riverside County line. Grove Avenue has little night traffic.

Detectives said that the body had yet to be identified at 10 a.m.

Weather Underground fugitives surrender

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
Associated Press Writer

Two fugitives from the Weather Underground have surrendered to Chicago authorities in a move that may signal a shift by the radical group's members away from political bombings and sabotage.

Robert H. Roth and Phoebe Hirsch are free on bond following their successful seven-year effort to escape capture by state and federal authorities. Both were indicted in 1969 on charges of mob action and aggravated battery. Roth also was sought on a federal fugitive warrant.

A source said the surrender may be part of a political strategy called "inversion" under which some Weather Underground members would surface to pursue their revolutionary political goals above ground.

It was impossible to confirm the report, and several sources noted that the pair may have decided to surface on their own without their comrades' also adopting the inversion strategy.

One source who spoke to the radicals after their surrender said, "What they are doing is a personal decision. I cannot say if this is part of inversion and I cannot say that it is not."

Roth and Ms. Hirsch could not be reached, and their attorneys had no comment.

Roth was released on $100 bond and Ms. Hirsch on her personal recognizance after they surrendered on March 25, unnotified by federal authorities and by reporters. They are scheduled to appear in Cook County Circuit Court for a hearing on April 28.

The Underground is suspected of carrying out more than a dozen bombings or acts of political sabotage.

Burglary probe ends in arrest of valley man

A Montclair man was arrested and more than $10,000 in suspected stolen property, cash and marijuana were confiscated Wednesday night as the result of an investigation of numerous burglaries in the Upland, Alta Loma, Cucamonga, Claremont and Montclair areas over the past several months.

West End Sheriff's deputies and Upland police said the arrest of Anthony David Ronquillo of 9995 Mills Ave., Montclair, ended the two-week investigation.

Deputies said they obtained a search warrant for Ronquillo's home Wednesday and served the warrant Wednesday night.

Once inside of the home, deputies reportedly found more than $5,000 in suspected stolen property, $1,300 in cash and seven kilos of marijuana.

Deputies said some of the property has been identified as coming from recent burglaries in the Cucamonga, Ontario and Upland areas. Ronquillo is booked in the West End jail for investigation of possession of stolen property and possession of marijuana for sale.

Club offers bounty for robbery victims who shoot, kill attackers

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York gun club has declared its own war on crime, offering $200 cash bounties to robbery victims who shoot and kill their attackers.

"The award is specifically for meritorious cases ... It's just for certain instances," Gerald Preiser, head of the 5,000-member Federation of Greater New York Pistol and Rifle Clubs, said Wednesday. "We call it a courageous citizen's award."

Others have suggested a more apt term would be bounty, the scourge of the Old West. Without exception, city officials denounce the idea.

"This kind of approach is why we have been pushing so diligently for strong gun control," said Mayor Abraham Beame.

But Preiser said that sort of attitude is just political talk and does not deter crime.

"We're at a point where the city has gone so far downhill that there are too many illegal guns and too few legal guns. We feel people should be encouraged to defend themselves."

The gun group already has singled out three merchants for awards, all victims of recent attempted robberies. Four persons were shot and killed and another was wounded during the robberies.

Preiser, 42, said the offer is now limited to merchants, but may be expanded "if we get enough money through contributions and other avenues to meet demand."

Preiser, who is a manufacturer of children's outerwear, said it's time for the average New York City resident to think about arming and protecting himself.

Arms limitation pact rejection final — Pravda

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet rejection of the latest U.S. arms limitation proposals is final, Pravda said today, asserting that they "not only lack any constructive element but in general cannot be the subject of serious discussion."

The Soviet Communist party newspaper dismissed suggestions by U.S. officials that the Soviet government rejected the proposals during Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's recent visit to Moscow because it needed more time to study them.

Traffic death toll up 1st time since '55' limit imposed

CHICAGO (AP) — For the first time since Congress passed the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit, the annual national traffic death toll has increased, the National Safety Council says.

Motor vehicle-related deaths totaled 55,511 in 1973, but dropped sharply to 46,402 in 1974, the first year of the 55-mile-per-hour limit.

May move against invaders of Zaire

Moroccan troops poised for offensive

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP)—Moroccan troops in southern Zaire appear to be getting ready for an offensive against the invaders from Angola.

Nearly 1,000 Moroccan troops were reported at Kolwezi, the center of the copper mines in Shaba province, and President Mobutu Sese Seko is prodding them to move against his foes some 50 miles to the west. Reporters returning from Kolwezi said the Moroccans, who arrived last weekend, were collecting information on the enemy's strength and positions and bringing in war materiel, presumably for an offensive. But they said there was no indication when they would move out.

Five hundred more Moroccan troops were reported at Lubumbashi, the capital of Shaba province 150 miles east of Kolwezi. They were reported to be setting up supply lines to the troops at Kolwezi.

The invaders, exiles who fled from Shaba in the early 1960s when it was Katanga province and Zaire was the Congo, crossed the Angolan border on March 8, quickly conquered the western third of the province and then stopped to consolidate.

Observers say that with Mobutu's demoralized forces bolstered by the Moroccans, it will be impossible for the invaders to take Kolwezi.

Mobutu in a French television interview demanded that neutral African observers be sent to determine whether the invaders were being supplied from Angola as he has charged. He said if this was not the case, his forces would not need further foreign military assistance.

Mobutu hailed the 11-plane French airlift that is supplying the Moroccan troops in Shaba, saying, "It proves that Europe still has a role to play in Africa."

The Angolan government charged that Zairean artillery fired on an Angolan merchant ship in Angolan waters 12 miles from Matadi on April 10, wounding several crewmen and badly damaging the ship, the Soviet news agency Tass reported from Luanda, the Angolan capital.

Tass said Angola warned Zaire it would not tolerate further "provocations against Angolan ships in the country's territorial waters."

Matadi is at the head of the Congo river estuary, across the river from Zaire.

Meanwhile, a Zairean delegation arrived in Lusaka, the capital of Zambia, to talk with Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda about his government's charges that Zairean air force planes bombed two Zambian villages and a mission hospital near the Shaba border.

GARMENT WORKERS PROTEST

Workers in New York's garment industry hold rally in Herald Square Wednesday, one of many such demonstrations across the nation to protest the import of clothing. Meanwhile, AFL-CIO president George Meany and clothing union leaders met with President Carter to emphasize their view that imported clothing cost American workers jobs.

U.S. begins withdrawal of missiles, S. Korea turnover

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Army has started withdrawing its nuclear-tipped Sergeant ground-to-ground missiles from South Korea.

Gen. Bernard W. Rogers, Army chief of staff, also disclosed in an interview that U.S. forces have begun turning over their Nike-Hercules anti-aircraft missiles with conventional explosive warheads to the South Koreans.

The moves, which will reduce U.S. ground troops in South Korea by about 1,300, were planned during the Ford administration.

However, they mesh with President Carter's stated intention of removing all 32,000 U.S. ground troops from South Korea over a four to five year span. Carter has said: "I would envision a continuation of American air cover for South Korea over a long period of time."

Rogers said the pullout of the Sergeant missiles "will not result in a significant reduction" in fire power because other U.S. units will cover their missions.

The Army chief of staff did not elaborate, but it is known that the U.S. Army has guns in Korea capable of firing nuclear shells. The U.S. Air Force also maintains nuclear weapons for its fighter bombers based in Korea.

The Sergeant, a mobile weapon with a maximum range of 135 miles, has been backing up U.S. and South Korean troops on the peninsula for about 13 years.

The battalion now being disbanded is the last Sergeant unit in the U.S. Army. The Sergeant is being replaced by the newer Lance missile everywhere but in Korea.

Rogers declined an opportunity to say how he feels about withdrawing all U.S. ground troops from South Korea.

Other Army generals, however, have said privately they are concerned the departure of U.S. ground troops will increase the danger of a North Korean attack on South Korea.

Gen. John W. Vessey, Jr., commander of American troops in South Korea, was quoted before Carter's inauguration as saying the Army's 2nd Infantry division in South Korea is "very important to the deterrence" of attack from the north and that its withdrawal would "increase considerably" the risk of renewed war between North and South Korea.

Hearing held for ex-cop accused in kidnap-slaying of gang member

The preliminary hearing of a retired San Gabriel policeman, accused of kidnaping and murdering a reputed youth gang member, is under way in West Covina under heavy security.

The ex-officer is Billy Joe McIlvain, 32, who is charged with kidnaping and murdering David Dominguez, 18, last Feb. 28. Previously, Dominguez' relatives had told reporters that Dominguez was a member of the Sangra (San Gabriel) youth gang.

The hearing began Tuesday and was expected to end today. It was being conducted before Citrus Municipal Court Judge Alfonso M. Bazan.

The district attorney's deputy prosecuting the former policeman said he planned to call approximately 30 witnesses.

The courthouse was under tight security with police stationed atop the three-story West Covina Civic Center parking facility. Spectators who entered the courtroom had to pass through a metal detector and some were required to submit to searches.

Young Dominguez was shot to death inside McIlvain's home in West Covina while policemen ringed the place, believing McIlvain had been kidnaped and was being held hostage. He claimed that he shot Dominguez in self-defense.

But later police charged that it was McIlvain who kidnaped Dominguez and they charged him also with murder. McIlvain had had a history of violent encounters with gang members while working with the San Gabriel Police Department, authorities said. At the time of the shooting he had retired on a medical disability as the result of one of those encounters.

View agency merger to eliminate drag in civil rights action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal civil rights enforcement is slow, inconsistent and unfair, President Carter's top adviser for government reorganization says.

Harrison Wellford indicated a new, merged agency may eventually be recommended to correct matters.

"We're concerned about the drag on civil rights compliance efforts. We're very concerned about the lack of predictability, consistency in civil rights regulations," said the head of Carter's reorganization team in an interview Wednesday.

Wellford said his unit will study civil rights enforcement, now scattered among the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the departments of Justice, Labor, and Health, Education and Welfare, and the General Services Administration and other agencies.

Wellford, one of the original Nader's Raiders, is now an associate director of the Office of Management and Budget and the man with primary responsibility for carrying out Carter's campaign pledge to make the federal government more efficient and responsive to individual citizens.

He repeatedly refused to give specifics on possible changes in various areas, saying that the administration has an open mind on how changes should be made.

"I'm not suggesting that we come at it with any preconceived notions about the amount of consolidation that might result. We're certainly not committed to a superagency per se."

"But we do need to look at where there's overlap and duplication — and there appears to be a awful lot of it — and try to find ways to make this whole compliance process, really, more efficient and fair."

"And I think there's a real equity problem in how a lot of these laws are being administered — equity both ways, equity in terms of people being regulated, and equity in terms of people waiting for their cases to be handled for years and years."

$2,300 dope burglaries in Upland

Upland police this morning were investigating the burglary of two pharmacies in the downtown area during the past 72-hours that netted thieves more than $2,300 in narcotics and dangerous drugs.

The first burglary at the Upland Prescription Shop, 1148 San Bernardino Rd. was reported by a custodian about 4:45 a.m. Tuesday. Police said burglars gained entrance to the pharmacy by opening a floor-level window. The burglars made off with dextedrin, codene and codene derivatives valued at $350.

The second burglary at Upland Pharmacy, 296 N. Second Ave., was reported about 8:15 a.m. Wednesday by employees coming to work. The burglars had cut a hole in the roof of the building to avoid silent burglar alarms and helped themselves to more than $2,000 in drugs and narcotics.

Cowboys and Indians will visit S.D.

Cowboys and Indians in full regalia will leap off an AMTRAC train in San Dimas Saturday celebrating that frontier city's Western days celebration and Western art show.

City officials said it took almost 2½ months and the help of Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-West Covina, in Washington to authorize the unscheduled stop at Monte Vista Avenue and Santa Fe tracks at 7:55 a.m. Saturday.

Participants will board the train at Pomona's station on Garey Avenue at 7:45 a.m. for the three mile trip. They will be met in San Dimas by the mayor, City Council members and other dignitaries.

American Indian and Cowboy Artist Society members will open the affair Friday night with an invitation only sale of almost $250,000 worth of paintings and sculptures at Plummer Community Building. The show is open to the public Saturday and Sunday.

Western crafts will be displayed throughout the downtown area along with Indian dances all three days of the event.

Deluge of junk mail irks mayor

WEST ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — The mayor of this Essex County community says he likes to read, but enough is enough.

Mayor William F. Cuozi has been receiving hundreds of dollars worth of magazine subscriptions, vocational school courses and book club memberships in his name but without his permission.

Cuozi said recently he is the target of a "consistent, relentless campaign of harassment."

He said he doesn't know who is behind the campaign, but he has alerted postal authorities and sent a form letter to each of the vendors sending the unsolicited material to his office.

"There are so many of them I can't send them back, so I have written a letter to each seller telling them to come and pick up the product," he said.

What's going on around here

Hospital directors

New appointments have been made to the Foothill Presbyterian Hospital, Glendora, board of directors. They are Richard Ferguson, geologist; the Rev. E. Eugene Huff, executive presbyter, Presbytery of San Gabriel; Thomas S. Oki, assistant administrator, Sierra Royale Hospital; Gary Underhill, vice president, marketing, Rain Bird Sprinkler Corp.; and Louis Simmerli, president, Screwmatic, Inc.

In addition to Keith Van Vliet, board chairman, the executive committee consists of Mary E. La Petra, vice chairman; Leonard O. Ray, treasurer; Robert L. Tscharner, secretary; Dr. Charles Kramer; Joseph Luevanos; the Rev. Walter A. Ray; Dr. Orville L. Mestad; and D. Bruce Van Vranken, M.D.

Square dance

The Turnagin Square Dance Club will hold its monthly dance at Palomares Hall in Pomona Saturday at 8 p.m. For those dancers interested in learning the square round of the month, Jim and Rosemary Bess will teach at 7:30 p.m. and cue the rounds during the evening. Calling for the dance will be Shelby Dawon of Claremont.

Cyclethon planned

More than 200 bicycling doctors are recruiting other physicians to join them Sunday for the first annual Doctors Cyclethon, sponsored by the Greater Los Angeles affiliate of the American Heart Association.

Dr. Irwin Hoffman, chairman, and his committee have laid out a 10-mile course through Century City for an afternoon of recreation to demonstrate the relationship of good health and exercise.

Dr. Hoffman said the 1 to 5 p.m. event is not a competition but he and his committee challenge all area physicians "to practice what they preach to their patients about keeping healthy with regular and moderate exercise."

Bikers will raise funds to support heart research, education and community service programs by securing sponsors to pledge support on a per-mile basis. For example, a dollar-per-mile pledge will contribute $1 to the Heart Association for each mile the doctor rides. Each rider has a basic goal of $1,000.

Magic show

A magic show by John Allen is the featured event for children during National Library Week at the Upland library April 20 at 4 p.m.

During the week, children will be making their own yarn dolls and bookmarks at the crafts table. "The Beauty of Books" will feature a facsimile of a page from the Gutenberg Bible, a French Book of Hours, and a book about medieval illuminated manuscripts.

April 19 and 20 from 10 to 10:30 a.m., Corinne Steele will present figure draping for the Hobby Circle, and Story Time will continue at that same time on both days.

Open house at La Verne College

The La Verne College is hosting its annual open house Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. in the Supertent. Biff Green, director of admissions, said 500 people are expected to attend this event.

Prospective students and their parents will hear an address from Wayne Miller, vice-president of undergraduate affairs, then tour the campus.

For more information, persons may call La Verne College Admissions Office at 593-3511, ext. 246.

Reading program

Mrs. Dallas Buchanan of Claremont, board member of the Ontario-Pomona Association for Retarded Citizens in Montclair, is the local coordinator of the West End of San Bernardino County and eastern Los Angeles County for a benefit Read-A-Thon.

During this month, the California Association for the Retarded is sponsoring a fund-raising event called a "Read-A-Thon."

Students from elementary school through high school will be asked to read books and solicit pledges for each book they read between now and April 30. Pledges may be obtained from parents, friends or neighbors, and may be for any amount from a few cents to a few dollars. The project is designed to generate an interest in reading for all California students; make the public and students more aware of the needs and capabilities of all retarded people; and to raise the funds needed to maintain and further the many statewide programs of research, public education and community services for all retarded citizens.

The area chairmen who have accepted the responsibility of initiating the first year of this annual project are Mrs. Beverly Hunter, 985-0663, Upland; Beth Cummings, 595-7741, Diamond Bar; Karen Whiteside, 596-1167, Pomona; Beverly Cowan, 986-2414, Ontario; and Hetty Doesburg, 624-1411, Chino.

For further information regarding the Read-A-Thon, persons may contact Mary Boyd Merrill, executive director at the OPARC Center, 626-5108 or 624-1411.

Workshop set

Jim Hastings, president of the Southern California Association of Rehabilitation Facilities (SCARF), announced the association will present a series of workshops April 20 at Casa Colina Hospital in Pomona.

The president's reception begins at 5:30 p.m., with dinner served at 6:30 p.m. After a short business meeting the workshops will begin at 8 p.m.

They will include "The Secretariat and Her Boss — How to Make it Work Better," "Assertion Training — It's Value with Clients" and "Relaxation Training — How to Increase Productivity of Client-Employee-Boss."

Claremont High reunion

Members of Claremont High School's 1957 graduating class are making plans for a 20-year reunion.

Class members are asked to phone Anne Fredendall Green at 626-0122 after 5 p.m.

Senior citizen transportation

A Town Forum meeting will be held from 4 until 6 p.m. Tuesday on senior citizen transportation.

The forum, sponsored by the Soroptimist Club of Pomona, will be held in Pitzer Auditorium of Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Participating will be Jerrold Gonce, Pomona city administrator; Gene Stalians, Paul's Taxi Service; Helena Hult, Santa Monica Senior Service Center; and Bill Braden, American National Red Cross, Pomona.

They will discuss fixed transportation, taxi service, volunteer drivers and Dial-a-Ride and other door-to-door services.

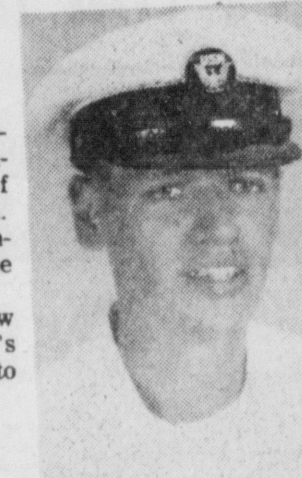

The forum moderator will be Miss Roberta Carrington, a past president of the local club.

Veterans may apply here for discharge upgrading

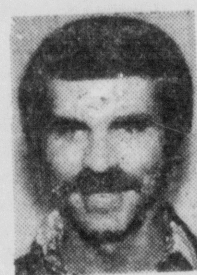

Vietnam-era veterans seeking an upgrading of their "undesirable" and "general" discharges under the Defense Department's recently announced review plan may receive assistance in applying for the review at the Pomona Red Cross chapter, 420 N. Reservoir St., Pomona.

Veterans, who were discharged between Aug. 4, 1964, and March 28, 1973, and who believe there is sufficient cause for an upgrade of their discharge may contact Mrs. Sue Cody, Red Cross Service to Military Families coordinator, for counsel.

Military discharge review boards are scheduled to meet in the Southern California area in May.

Upgrading of an "undesirable" discharge restores to the veteran all government benefits to which veterans of military service are entitled.

Civil Service Commission may have powers cut

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

A proposal that would cut the powers of the Los Angeles County Civil Service Commission is being offered by the county Board of Supervisors.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn claims the commission as now constituted is "outmoded" and duplicates the work currently done by various county employee associations.

He called for an ordinance that would leave the commission with only the power to hire and to promote. The ordinance would strip that board from reviewing firings, grievances and other employee problems.

The board approved a study of the proposal, but held back action on an ordinance pending input from department chairmen and the county council's office.

Supervisor James Hayes said the ordinance, as written, is like a

"sledge hammer."
"I agree that the civil service system is passe," he added. "However, I'm not sure whether this is the right time to bring this out. We are in a position of negotiations with the employees right now and having an ordinance of this type would stir up too many side issues."

Supervisor Peter Schabarum, however, declared the proposal "hit the mark right on the bull's eye. The timing is right to move with some aggressiveness to see if you can modify the system."

He suggested the proposal be turned over for study to the county's efficiency commission.

Hahn told the board that several elements of the civil service system "may have outgrown their usefulness."

Hahn said the only elements of civil service which are still truly central are the merit selection in hiring and in promotion procedures.

Scouts hold annual Camporee

The Old Baldy Council of the Boy Scouts of America will hold its annual Camporee for all Scout troops in the council Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Prado Regional Park, said Martin Walsh, district executive.

The public is invited to attend this event on both Saturday and Sunday to observe scouting activities and competition events.

A campfire social will be held Saturday from 7 to 9 p.m., and judging of all events and the awards ceremony will highlight the Sunday activities at 11 a.m.

Scouting events on Saturday will be from 9 a.m. until noon and resume at 1:30 p.m. The competition concludes at 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

All troops participating in the Camporee will assemble at the Prado Regional Park on Friday between 5 and 9 p.m. to prepare for the events on Saturday.

Saturday competition events will include first aid, fire building, map and compass, nature, pioneering and obstacle course.
The annual Old Baldy

Council Camporee is designed to give local scout troop members an opportunity to put their skills to work in field situations and to foster fellowship and unity, Walsh added.

Moon's church loses bid for tax exemption

NEW YORK (AP) — Saying that Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church was rife with political motives and activities, the city tax commission has rejected an application for tax exemptions on properties worth more than $2.6 million, it was learned.

Informed sources told The Associated Press that a 4-3 majority found that the sect failed to meet requirements that the property be used exclusively for religious purposes.

The commission majority noted that Moon and his followers actively supported former President Richard Nixon's efforts to remain in the White House and were behind many programs that would have benefited the government of South Korea.

They cited as another incident of involvement the sect's activities during the Watergate crisis, when Moon sponsored a unity project to generate support for forgiveness of those involved.

CHECKS ASSIGNMENT — Sister Robert Julia Derby works with Honolulu police officers. She is the only female police chaplain listed in the International Conference of Police Chaplains.

Nun on job as police chaplain

HONOLULU (AP) — She wears the badge of the Honolulu Police Department, but Sister Roberta Julia Derby says her job doesn't include enforcing the law.

"My job is not enforcement but compassion, comfort and support," said Sister Roberta, believed to be the only female police chaplain in the nation.

The 53-year-old Roman Catholic nun was sworn in as a reserve officer about five months ago after spending more than five years riding part time with regular officers. Now, she spends much of her week still riding in cars responding to everything from suicides to barking dogs.

"My primary duty is the spiritual and ethical care of policemen and their families," said the sister, who is the only woman listed in the Directory of the International Conference of Police Chaplains.

She believes nuns and police have much in common, noting both have a rigorous training period and both live with a strict discipline.

In addition to her police work, Sister Roberta still finds time to direct the Criminal Justice Education Division at Honolulu's Chaminade University. The work at the university is her main job, but she is at the police station at least five days a week.

The chaplaincy is a non-salaried position. Even expenses are left to the sister, who designed her own blue uniform.

Sister Roberta said the police world brings her closer awareness of real evil.

"If you've just come in contact with a person who has done an unspeakable thing, or have just seen the result of an unspeakable thing, you have to face up to it," she said.

Asia's tallest skyscraper

TOKYO (AP) — Shinto priests in kimonos conducted traditional ceremonies Wednesday as the last section of what is believed to be Asia's tallest skyscraper was hoisted into place. It stands on the site where seven war criminals were hanged 29 years ago.

The new 800-foot-high, 60-story "Sunshine 60" complex is the most ambitious use so far of a new flexible building technique capable of withstanding massive earthquakes.

It is part of a $6 billion urban redevelopment project on the 14.8-acre site of the former Sugamo Prison, which became a synonym for war criminals after dozens were imprisoned after trials by the Allied victors in World War II. Among the seven hanged here on Dec. 23, 1948, was wartime Prime Minister Hideki Tojo.

"We will leave the exact site of the execution of the war criminals an open space, which we will make into a park. We eventually will build a monument for those executed here," said Chiaki Yajima of the New Urban Development Center Co. Ltd.

Besides the skyscraper, with its 130 offices for 15,000 employees, the center is to have a 1,110-room hotel, an 11-story department store, a cultural center and underground malls and parking lots.

Designers said the sky-scraper's flexible construction enables it to withstand an earthquake three times as strong as the great 1923 quake which killed nearly 100,000 persons in and around Tokyo.

Tokyo's first "flexible" building, the 482-foot, 36-story Kasumigaseki building, was completed in 1968 after Dr. Kiyoshi Muto, former professor at Tokyo University, developed the theory for absorbing the impact of earthquakes.

"Sunshine 60" is Tokyo's sixth such skyscraper.

"Since we designed the Kasumigaseki building, Japan's welding technology had advanced a lot," said Masashi Nagata, chief aide to Dr. Muto.

North America has about two dozen skyscrapers of equal or greater height.

Georgia utility out of step?

Civil rights leader complains to Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of a key civil rights group told President Carter Wednesday that some corporations, including a large Georgia utility, are out of step with the administration's position on human rights.

The civil rights official also complained about part of Carter's food stamp program.

"We want to support your position on human rights ... particularly at this point in history as it relates to South Africa," said the Rev. Joseph E. Lowery, acting president and chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, once headed by slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

"We're very concerned that corporations, however, particularly one in your home state, negate this policy," Lowery told the President during a meeting in the Cabinet Room at the White House, also attended by other members of the SCLC board.

The Rev. Mr. Lowery identified the firm only as a Southern company that owns utilities in Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi. He said it has contracted to purchase seven million tons of coal from South Africa.

The SCLC board, in Washington for its spring meeting, said Tuesday that buying coal from South Africa supports suppression of its black African majority and undermines the U.S. labor force.

Lowery told Carter his organization is committed to a non-violent campaign against the importation of that coal, and we hope the President, consistent with his policy on human rights, discourages such purchases.

Turning to the administration's food stamp program, the Rev. Mr. Lowery said the SCLC approves of Carter's proposal to abolish requirements that the poorest recipients buy the coupons with cash.

Under the current program, a family might be required to put up $100 in cash for $166 in stamps for a bonus of $66 worth of food. Carter would simply give that family $66 in stamps.

But Lowery opposed Carter's proposed changes that would remove about 1.5 million persons from eligibility. These persons have income significantly in excess of the federal poverty level.

Under Carter's proposal, a family of four would no longer qualify for food stamps if its income was much over $8,000 a year. Presently some families with higher incomes qualify, if they have unusually high expenses.

Mummy that of outlaw of 1900s?

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The mysterious tale of Elmer J. McCurdy, a turn-of-the-century Oklahoma train robber, may finally be put to rest today.

Three Oklahomans — an anthropologist and two historians have come to Los Angeles to examine a mummified corpse that is thought to be that of the infamous bandit who was gunned down in 1911 in Osage County.

For years, the mummified corpse hung at the Long Beach, Calif., Amusement Park, where it was passed off as a wax dummy. But when an arm fell off last Dec. 7, investigation showed the dummy to be a mummy, and authorities launched a hunt for the corpse's true identity.

Oklahoma forensic anthropologist Dr. Clyde Snow and Guthrie historians Fred Olds and Ralph McCalm were to investigate the mummy.

"We're taking along photographs of the body (McCurdy's) and a description and a mug shot," Olds, curator of the Oklahoma Territorial Museum, said Monday. "The only thing we'll be able to tell you will be the photos. The guy will not weigh 170 pounds now, or have blue eyes or sandy hair," he added.

Snow, chief of the Civil Aeromedical Institute Physiological Anthropology Unit at the FAA center in Oklahoma City, will try to identify the body by looking for a "scar on the right wrist, convolutions of the ear and side and frontal views of the face," Olds said.

If the body turns out to be McCurdy's, the Los Angeles County coroner has agreed to release it for burial in Guthrie's Boot Hill, next to several other Oklahoma outlaws.

Handicapped aid each other in sit-in SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Each night someone lifts Judy Heumann out of her wheelchair and places her on a mattress on the floor among other handicapped demonstrators occupying a federal office building.

Someone has to help her wash or go to a rest room, but on the way she'll guide fellow demonstrators who can't see or hear.

Miss Heumann, 29, is one of about 125 disabled persons encamped in the regional office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare since April 5.

They are demanding that HEW Secretary Joseph Califano sign regulations enforcing 1973 legislation banning alleged discrimination against the handicapped.

Some medical aides are staying with the demonstrators, but mostly the protesters pool their abilities to help each other.

"There are disabled people who can help each other," Miss Heumann said Tuesday, the eighth day of the sit-in.

The handicapped coalition has formed committees to handle food, recreation, cleaning, press relations and negotiations with the HEW.

Carter's plan to conserve energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's energy plan probably will include an initial, standby tax increase of five cents a gallon on gasoline and is sure to call for even heavier taxes on domestically produced crude oil, congressional and administration sources said today.

While details of the President's energy proposals are still being worked out, the package clearly will mean that Americans who use energy excessively will pay a heavy penalty, mostly through added taxes.

Among the proposals likely to be sent to Congress on April 20 are:

—A gasoline tax increase starting at five cents, and rising another 10 cents annually in the second and third years of the program. It would be imposed only if U.S. consumption fails to decline, a possibility not considered likely by Carter's energy advisers.

The current federal tax is four cents per gallon.

—A so-called "gas guzzler" tax starting at $412 on new cars which use gas inefficiently. It could go as high as $2,500 for the purchase of each new car.

—A tax of several dollars per barrel on crude oil produced in the United States. Its purpose is to gradually lift the price of domestic oil to that charged by Middle Eastern nations and other foreign producers.

—Heavy taxes on the industrial use of natural gas in an effort to dramatically increase coal production and use. Although natural gas prices would remain controlled, the ceiling would be allowed to gradually rise, meaning higher heating bills for homeowners.

—Payroll taxes, probably Social Security levies, would be lowered to offset the impact on the budgets of lower- and middle-income Americans.

The Wall Street Journal said the tax on crude oil producers could result in a 10 per cent increase in gasoline prices in addition to the tax at the gas pump. The newspaper said it had obtained a copy of Carter's energy proposal, which it said is being circulated among administration officials to give them a chance to suggest changes.

Congressional sources predict that Carter's energy proposals will face a stiff fight on Capitol Hill.

None of the specifics of the plan have been firmly decided, and some of the general proposals may not survive an administration screening if the President decides they are too politically sensitive, the sources said.

Can't crush dissent—Yugoslav

ROME (AP) — Milovan Djilas, Yugoslavia's leading dissident, said in a newspaper article published today that East Europe's Communist regimes are no longer in a position to crush dissent at home.

In an article written for Rome's Socialist newspaper La Repubblica, Djilas said that "the Soviet regime has reached a dead end and this is why dissent is inevitable; a kind of natural phenomenon."

Djilas, who lives in Belgrade and has repeatedly been attacked by the government and the Yugoslav press, described Charter 77, the manifesto of Czechoslovak dissidents, as "the most mature and accomplished program produced by Eastern Europe from the war up to today."

"It can be the reference point of all dissidents, of the subjected peoples, of the anonymous persons deprived of rights that live in that immense area that is Eastern Europe," he wrote.

"If someone asks me what is the result achieved so far by this movement, through so many efforts and so many sufferings and defeats, I reply: thanks to it, the existence of opposition has been acknowledged."

"Now an opposition exists and even those who hold power have to take it into account."

"They believe they can exorcise it by calling it 'traitor' and 'renegade' — but they are no longer in a position to destroy it."

Djilas said that among the causes for dissent in Eastern Europe the broadest and maybe the most important is human nature itself.

"The systems of Communist Europe offer themselves as 'the truth' without appeals and as the 'best possible' societies," he wrote. "Even if this assumption were true, human nature would rebel against this ultimate state ... beyond which one could see no possible future."

Space future:

Astronaut tells Garey students about programs

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Future space programs will stress conservation of fuel and the use of satellites to monitor agricultural development, Astronaut John L. Swigert told two Pomona groups Wednesday.

Swigert marked the seventh anniversary of the exact date of when his flight to the moon was aborted by an explosion within the capsule by talking with students at Garey High School and meeting later with the press.

Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-West Covina, and Swigert presented miniature replicas of the Space Shuttle to George Block, Garey's principal, and Leeanne Castro, student body president. Resource materials on space programs were donated to the school library by the congressman.

The visit to Garey was germinated by a former student body president, John Ochoa, who works in Lloyd's Washington, D.C., office.

Swigert was a member of the crew of Apollo XIII, scheduled to be the third space ship to land on the moon. But on April 13, 1970, an oxygen tank exploded aboard the service module. The space ship continued around the moon without landing before returning for a safe splashdown in the South Pacific.

"The explosion was unfortunate, but we learned a lot and it demonstrated the complete cooperation possible between ground and flight crews," Swigert said.

Swigert, who now serves as executive director of the House of Representatives Science and Technology Committee, said space shuttles orbiting around the earth will tell us a great deal about the soil conditions and crops and allow for control of insect infestations.

"Fifty years from now, space satellites will be used for projects we haven't even dreamed of yet," he added. "These include growing crystals for energy, producing powerful vaccines and manufacturing products in a different environment."

Swigert said that the country's oil will be gone by the year 2000, therefore another source of energy must be developed.

In talking before the press, Swigert said that congressmen have a hard time understanding the need for a long lead time in planning space programs.

"The lack of technical people in Congress has hurt this country's energy development program," Swigert said. "The legislators can't understand the time needed to develop projects, educate engineers and build labs."

While nuclear energy plants are slow to develop in this country, Swigert said, they did supply 36 per cent of the energy to Chicago and New York City during this winter's cold wave.

"The U.S. and Russia cooperation in the space program is continuing, but the Russians are hard bargainers," added the astronaut. "They are behind us technically but want to bargain equally or to their advantage."

Swigert said that while Russia is now producing more oil than it needs, the rate of their population increase indicates that they, too, will eventually be short of energy.

Among the luncheon guests was Don Des Combes, Pomona businessman, who was a football team member with Swigert at East High School in Denver, Colo.

Third tract not approved

Two Phillips Ranch tracts given okay

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

The first official step toward construction of up to $200 million worth of homes was taken by the Pomona Planning Commission Wednesday night when it approved two tentative tracts for the Phillips Ranch in Pomona's southwest corner.

A third tentative tract was also reviewed by the commission, but was not approved due to questions about street alignments. It will be reconsidered by the commission at a special meeting next week.

The two tracts approved by the commission contain a total of 752 individual homesites. They were submitted by Griffin Development Co. and Bauer Development Co.

Al Lesser, representing the ranch owner, Westmor Development Co., told the commission that eight separate builders will participate in the development of the ranch, which will eventually yield close to 2,500 housing units with an estimated value of $200 million.

"This is an ambitious project. Only Irvine Ranch in Orange County is as large and meaningful as this development will be," said Lesser.

One of the builders, Paul Griffin, told the commission that about 70 per cent of the buyers in the development are expected to come from Orange County or from the Los Angeles area. The other 30 per cent are expected to be from the local area.

The builders for the three tentative tracts reviewed by the commission also presented basic floor plans and drawings of the homes they envision for the site.

Griffin's homes range in size from 1,766 square feet to 2,216 square feet, with estimated price range of $60,000 to $80,000.

Homes for the Bauer tract, as presented by Warren Bauer, ranged in size from 1,415 square feet to 2,590 square feet with estimated costs of $50,000 to $80,000. The minimum house size for the tract was set at 1,500 square feet by the commission, however.

In the tract not approved by the commission, submitted by Marlborough Development Corp., proposed house sizes range from 1,429 square feet to 2,137 square feet with costs not designated. It appears certain, however, that the commission will also impose the 1,500 square feet minimum house size on the Marlborough tract and all others at the ranch.

The Marlborough tract was held over for one week so that the builder and city staff could try and find alternative street alignments within the subdivision.

Commission members, lead by Chairman Stan Kawa, were unhappy over the way the subdivision's interior streets intersected "loop road" that is the major street forming the hub of the entire ranch development.

Omnitrans to get loan from cities, county

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Despite the discovery that legally there was no provision in the joint powers agreement to assess member agencies of Omnitrans, the majority of participating cities and the county agreed to voluntarily loan Omnitrans the necessary funds for operational expenses through this fiscal year.

The agreement came during a relatively routine discussion Wednesday about the cash flow problems being experienced by the San Bernardino County transit operator.

The Omnitrans board, with only Mayor Elvin Meek of Rialto dissenting, also authorized the general manager and board chairman to seek loans from commercial banks if the loans from the cities and county don't generate the necessary $1,748,000 needed to continue operations.

The decisions were emotionally arrived at, with Councilman Hal Bailin of Upland giving sharp criticism to the Omnitrans management. He expressed harsh words to other members of the Omnitrans board and even suggested that Omnitrans general manager Paul Marsh be fired.

Marsh was formerly a transit administrator and innovator in Florida, coming to California to manage the San Bernardino Transit System before it merged with the county system and became Omnitrans. He is noted among the top transit executives in the nation.

Bailin suggested that Marsh was personally to blame for the cash flow problems. In actuality, the problem was caused by the failure of the federal government to forward approximately $2.5 million in federal transit dollars to the operator in San Bernardino County.

And Walt Pudinski, new city manager of Rialto, cried out for major reductions in bus service in order to lessen the burden on what he saw as a "financially distressed" Omnitrans.

Mayor W.R. Holcomb of San Bernardino heatedly defended the transit system against the attacks of both men. He said Omnitrans is not financially in trouble and that proof of this was available.

"It is normal governmental operation to go through a lean period before the money comes in," Holcomb said. "I have every confidence in the fact that eventually the money will all come in. There is no doubt in my mind."

"This transportation system is funded by federal and state monies and fare box revenue. I can't seem to get through to you that we're not in financial trouble. When you have accounts receivable backed up by the federal government, it's like cash. It is merely a cash flow problem."

Bailin persisted in pointing the finger of accusation at Omnitrans management for the present crisis, saying that it should have been able to predict at the beginning of the fiscal year the administrative problems at the federal level.

"If it can't be done in advance by present management, then we perhaps should have management who can," Bailin charged.

Holcomb retorted "poppycock" to Bailin's criticisms and labeled the Upland man's posture as "immature." He reminded Bailin that the City of San Bernardino had in the past advanced the transit operation the necessary cash to function until federal funds arrived.

Walnut OKs parking changes

By DAVID READER
PB Correspondent

Changes in an ordinance concerning required off-street parking facilities unanimously were approved by Walnut City Council Wednesday evening.

The council action followed a public hearing on the matter.

Areas affected include commercial and industrial parking lots, residential driveways and church, school and hospital parking facilities.

Code alterations mainly have to do with the number of parking spaces required for access to public and private buildings. But they also include provisions for the physical layout of parking spaces, and their general physical condition.

In another action, the council gave approval to allow staff to contact the Walnut Valley Unified School District and attempt to work out a joint plan to fund the city's continued participation in the Pomona Valley Juvenile Diversion Project.

The project, now in its third year, is a joint effort by the cities of Pomona, Walnut, La Verne and San Dimas and unincorporated areas of Diamond Bar to aid in the problem of juvenile delinquency.

The program provides counseling on both an individual and parent-family level, job training and employment facilities and educational, social and recreational programs.

The council took no action on the allocation of its financial contribution, which would be $4,283, until it knows the school district's position on contributing a like amount of funds.

Woman, child hurt in accidents

Two persons, one an 11-year-old child, were injured in Pomona traffic accidents Wednesday, police reported.

The child, Cheryln R. Cassell, of Glendora, suffered elbow injuries when she was struck by a car Wednesday afternoon at Holt and Garey avenues. She told police she was running for a bus when the accident occurred. The driver of the car was Lovell V. Tucker, 30, of Pomona.

The girl did not require immediate medical attention.

A woman was injured a few minutes later at Mission Boulevard east of Caswell Street when her parked car was struck by another auto.

The victim, Georgia M. Richardson, 21, of Pomona, was released from Pomona Valley Community Hospital after being treated for neck and back pain.

Police reported the young woman's car was struck as she was preparing to exit it, and the impact knocked her back inside. The other driver, Sylvester Thomas, 53, of Pomona, was arrested on a charge of driving under the influence of a drug.

County agency rejected

Property tax adjustments were considered

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) in a day-long battle rejected a proposal Wednesday to form a county-wide service agency that would charge higher property taxes to unincorporated areas within Los Angeles County to reduce taxes in the cities.

The request was made by the City of Los Angeles and League of California Cities on behalf of all cities within the county which claim that because they already have some services the county offers they are being subjected to double taxation.

The request was defeated by a 3-2 vote, which opens the way for what is expected to be a lengthy battle in Superior Court.

The dissenting votes were cast by Commissioner John Phillips, who felt there was an inequity in the present county services, and by Chairman Joe Finkbinder, the mayor of Glendora, who did not give his reasons.

Los Angeles County Supervisors Peter Schabarum and Baxter Ward, both members of LAFCO, teamed up with Commissioner Robert St. Clair to support a LAFCO staff recommendation to deny the request.

The staff contended the plan, as proposed, was "ambiguous, unworkable and would merely compound an existing problem."

Richard Vind of Diamond Bar, a member of the Municipal Advisory Council (MAC) warned the commission that if the plan was approved, there would be a rush of moves for incorporations, one of the first being Diamond Bar.

And Schabarum added that in proposals such as the bid for the county service area, "it is usually the suburbs that get had" because they rarely get their full share of the tax dollar.

The application stated that by taxing about two million acres in the unincorporated areas additionally, the cities would be taxed more equitably. It is estimated that such a county-wide tax would cost the unincorporated areas an additional $1.47 per $100 assessed valuation, but would reduce taxes in the cities by only 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Gilbert Smith, president of the Los Angeles County Division of the League of California Cities, told the board there "was something fundamentally wrong with the procedure that punished the cities through double taxation."

He admitted there were certain uniform services for which everyone should pay. But he felt special services provided only for the unincorporated areas and not to the cities should not be taxed uniformly.

County Supervisor Baxter Ward contended that if the proposal was really examined, the big loser would be the City of Los Angeles.

He said Los Angeles already is getting more than its share from the county in bus transportation, welfare allotments, roads and freeways, beaches and in the maintenance of the Music Center.

Ward said it was not fair to expect that projects totally in Los Angeles, such as the proposed "people mover," should be supported by the people of Diamond Bar, Rowland Heights and San Fernando Valley.

Don Delegal of Rowland Heights said there can be no equitable split of the taxes as proposed by the City of Los Angeles.

"If we were to reduce this proposal to its logical extreme, each person would pay only for the services he required," he declared.

"But we band together to provide services for all and pay for those services."

A total of 43 persons spoke before the commission Wednesday. Some of them presented petitions bearing hundreds of signatures against the extended county service area.

In rejecting the proposal, LAFCO satisfied a Superior Court requirement the City of Los Angeles exhaust all remedies before turning to the courts.

Smith said that now that LAFCO has refused the request, the next step is to turn to the courts.

Pomona, California ■ Thursday, April 14, 1977

Arms race ever changes

"The Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, which since 1945 has kept time on the arms race, has just moved its famous clock ominously closer to midnight."

The familiar reasoning is that the failure of American and Soviet negotiators at Geneva to reach agreement on limiting strategic arms means that the race continues. The superpowers are still engaged in a deadly contest, each provoking the other into piling up arms endlessly, wasting scarce resources, increasing the indiscriminate destructiveness of weapons, and moving the world closer to nuclear holocaust.

The above was not written yesterday, although if Geneva were changed to Moscow, it could have been. It was written nearly four years ago by University of Chicago professor and government defense consultant Albert Wohlstetter, in an article in the journal Foreign Policy.

Since then the famous clock has continued to hover between 11 o'clock and midnight. The names of the negotiators are different; the mathematics of the "mutually assured destruction" they must deal with remains essentially the same.

Again in 1974, the independent Center for Defense Information estimated that we had in our arsenal 2,404 "World War IIs" (the equivalent destructive power of all the bombs dropped on Germany and Japan in that war) and 363,769 "Hiroshimas" (the equivalent force of the atomic bomb that leveled that city). The Russians had 4,671 "World War IIs" and 718,539 "Hiroshimas."

Whatever the figures are today, they are as incomprehensible as they were back then.

But if the strategic arms limitation negotiators wander in the same surrealistic never-neverland in terms of the quantity of destructive power possessed by each side, one thing about the arms race that has changed, and continues to change, is the quality of the weapons at their disposal.

One of the obstacles that frustrated the Carter administration's first attempt to reach an accord with the Soviets was the cruise missile, a new element that has appeared on the chessboard since 1974. We have it and they don't—yet. And until they do have it, they are not going to accept any agreement which permits us an advantage in the deployment of this missile.

For that reason alone, although there were others, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's recent mission to Moscow was doomed before it started.

Four years from now, or two, or one, what sophisticated new weapons will have entered into and complicated the picture?

Yet as Wohlstetter argued in 1974, rather than locking us into an ever-tighter arms spiral leading to a holocaust, the constant improvement in the accuracy and versatility of nuclear weapons increases the range of choice of both sides to include more discriminate, less brutal, less suicidal responses to attack — responses that are more believable. And only a believable response will deter a potential aggressor.

That is one way of looking at it, and the avoidance of nuclear war for three decades offers at least negative proof that the continual refinement of nuclear weaponry need not inevitably increase the likelihood of that kind of war.

Still, at immense cost, each side continues to seek an advantage over the other, or to counter a supposed advantage achieved by the other. As a result of the failure in Moscow and the dim outlook for success in the next round of talks in Geneva in May, and because of recent Soviet surges in conventional war-making capability, the United States faces the prospect of another leap in defense spending.

The only comfort is that the cost of maintaining the arms race, great as it is, is infinitely less than the cost of ending it abruptly — in war.

Thoughts

Proclaim this among the nations: Prepare war, stir up the mighty men. Let all the men of war draw near, let them come up. Beat your plowshares into swords and your pruning hooks into spears; let the weak say, "I am a warrior." — Joel 3:9,10.

"There is no nation on earth so dangerous as a nation fully armed and bankrupt at home." — Henry Cabot Lodge, American statesman.

And I heard a voice from heaven saying, "Write this: Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord henceforth." "Blessed indeed," says the Spirit, "That they may rest from their labors, for their deeds follow them!" — Rev. 14:13.

"For when the One Great Scorer comes to write against your name, He marks — not that you won or lost — but how you played the game." — Grantland Rice, American sports writer.

Live as free men, yet without using your freedom as a pretext for evil; but live as servants of God. Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the emperor. — I Peter 2:16,17.

"Freedom is the birthright of man; it belongs to him by right of his humanity, in so far as this consists with every other person's freedom." — Immanuel Kant, German philosopher.

Anderson uninformed on hams

Dear Editor:

After reading Jack Anderson's column in last Thursday's Progress Bulletin ("Hams Hog Airwaves") I feel that I must point out a few facts that Mr. Anderson failed to mention.

The Citizens Radio Service (CB) was formed in 1957 with the intention of providing small business men and others with cheap and reliable radio communications where other business channels would be too expensive or hard to get licensed. According to the FCC regulations at that time, it was strictly and unequivocally forbidden to use CB for hobby use. Just recently, in a move to deregulate CB, the FCC removed the hobby restriction.

Mr. Anderson stated, truthfully, that hams are presently allocated more frequencies than are the TV and FM broadcasters and the Public Services combined. However, most of these channels are in the upper UHF range where it is impractical if not impossible for non-technical users to utilize these channels properly. He failed to state the "interference free" frequencies are shared with the U.S. government.

Mr. Anderson stated that the opposition to expanding CB privileges is generated largely by the American Radio Relay League, and called it a lobbying organization. Naturally, hams don't want to give up their frequencies to the Citizens Service, but there is another reason why CB has not been greatly expanded.

The Amateur Radio Service allocated its frequencies by the International Telecommunications Union. CB was not. It would be in violation of international regulations to give ham channels to CB'ers because in order to operate in those channels, knowledge of the Morse code is required.

Most disturbing of all was Mr. Anderson's comments about the "flash bulletin" to ARRL members telling them to "Utilize every league resource to prevent the incursion of CB'ers" into our airspace. As I said before, we don't want to lose our frequencies to CB'ers or anyone else. However, we go to great lengths to make it easier for one to join the ranks of licensed hams. The ARRL has many publications and many classes designed to bring CB'ers into amateur radio.

Jack Anderson has done much to protect the public from frauds and regulations detrimental to our society, and I'm sure he means well in this case also but it is indeed unfortunate that he chose to expound on the operations of hams when he has no familiarity with amateur radio. It is therefore understandable that he is so highly uninformed of the facts concerning our operations.

Trial unfair to Patty?

WASHINGTON — Patty Hearst "didn't receive a fair trial" last year, in the opinion of her court-appointed psychiatrist.

She was convicted of helping four armed radicals from the Symbionese Liberation Army rob a San Francisco bank. The spectacular 1974 robbery was staged two months after they brutally kidnapped her from her apartment.

She appeared as a tough-talking socialist-turned-revolutionary after the FBI caught up with her in September, 1975. But Dr. L.J. West, chairman of UCLA's Dept. of Psychiatry, portrayed her instead as a pathetic, "crushed, battered child."

He spent 40 hours interviewing the publishing heiress at the request of the court. With the assistance of a colleague, Dr. Margaret Thaler Singer, he compiled an exhaustive, 200-page report detailing the bizarre psychological changes Patty suffered during her 19-month ordeal.

West compared the SLA's treatment of Patty to the Chinese Communist tortures of American prisoners during the Korean War. Yet the Hearst jury never saw the full text of West's findings. Government prosecutors objected to admitting the report into evidence, despite the fact that West gave limited testimony at the trial.

Speaking out now for the first time, West told our reporters Jack Mitchell and Mike Viner that Judge Oliver Carter unfairly allowed government prosecutors to introduce evidence about Patty's unrelated activities. They hammered away at "bits of revolutionary doggerel" not directly connected with the bank robbery.

Yet the judge blocked the only written report on Patty's mental condition from the court record. "The jury heard all the government's evidence," recalled West, "but the court wasn't allowed to hear the tape recordings I had made of my conversations with Patty."

In these tapes, he said, "for the first and only time, she gives a full account of what happened to her after the kidnapping and describes her state of mind."

Her taped recollections would "bring tears to the eyes of a marble statue," said the psychiatrist. "Patty was the battered child, deeply regressed, powerfully wounded, still under the influence and fearful of the SLA."

The revolutionary "Tanya" personality, which received such widespread media coverage, lasted only a few weeks, according to West. In fact, her SLA companions, Bill and Emily Harris, renamed her "Pearl" because of her lack of revolutionary zeal.

She was in the "Pearl" stage, confided West, when she was arrested. Then after she was incarcerated, the child in her emerged. She went through a short period of confusion, with no real personality. "Dr. Singer and I decided to call her Pat, and she responded gradually."

During these examinations, Dr. Singer proved conclusively that SLA member Angela Atwood, not Patty, had written the profane political diatribes attributed to the heiress. Atwood, one of the SLA's female "braintrusts," used language and speech patterns completely alien to Patty's personality, West contended.

There was complete agreement among the four experts who examined Patty after her arrest that "she just couldn't lie." In any event, said West, Patty would have found it impossible to deceive the two psychiatrists who tested her.

The SLA gang forced the grotesque personality of Tanya upon Patty by employing torture and threats. Patty quietly admitted to West that she "didn't do anything" to resist the abuse, including cruel sexual assaults by Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze, the SLA leader.

At the trial, several jurors became suspicious of Patty's true motivations because she took the Fifth Amendment rather than testify about her SLA activities. The real reason for her reluctance to testify, claimed West, was fear over "dangers to the lives of her and her family from those SLA members still at liberty."

Other jurors thought that Patty's decision to keep the so-called "monkey" charm given to her by SLA member Willie Wolfe was a sign she loved him.

West disputes this. "This was her only possession at the time of her captivity." Because of her overwhelming fright, it became a "lucky piece" to her. She had worn it, for example, at the time of the SLA shoot-out, which she survived. This was the only thing she had to cling to.

"Patty Hearst was guilty of three things," concluded West. "She was guilty of being a woman. Since she had sexual relations with her captors, even though unwillingly, she was defiled. This made her a victim who, in the eyes of many, enjoyed her misfortune."

Doctors in hiding

Recently I was in Fort Worth, Texas, for a speaking engagement. Fourteen thousand people jammed that mid-city arena — and somewhere up in the balcony a woman collapsed.

Heart attack.

She stopped breathing.

Two doctors stood by and did nothing.

Now, don't jump on them yet.

Two doctors stood by — while a policeman hurried to the side of the stricken woman. It was the policeman who administered the mouth-to-mouth resuscitation which revived the woman.

When the drama was over and the heart attack victim was on her way to the hospital, the doctors explained that their fear of malpractice lawsuits dictated their behavior.

The policeman, less vulnerable, accepted the calculated risk of administering first aid.

And this is not the worst of it. The recent misuse of malpractice law has so intimidated physicians that some of them — on hospital duty — literally run and hide from emergencies!

Most physicians have already been through the malpractice wringer. Most have been sued by somebody.

And even if the subsequent legal proceedings found the doctor to be entirely innocent — it still cost him precious days away from his practice for depositions and conferences with counsel and tedious courtroom appearances. And sleepless nights.

The epidemic of litigation is such that any physician called in for consultation may become a defendant.

Indeed, neither of the doctors present in that Fort Worth crowd dared to offer the rescuing policeman any assistance or even advice.

And now most doctors subject most patients to a lot of unnecessary tests in order to protect themselves, spending more time with the patient's chart than with the patient since doctors now feel obligated to record every test, thought and action with a jury in mind.

Sanders Frank, professor of medicine at the University of Southern California, confides that fewer hospital doctors are responding to "code blue" calls — the signal for a cardiac or respiratory arrest. Those doctors simply vanish, become unavailable, rather than assist in a potential medical catastrophe.

They don't desert their own patients — but neither do they "get involved" where they might become liable, even though their involvement might be useful in saving a life.

Once bitten by unscrupulous lawyers eager for high contingency fees, any physician is understandably cautious.

The alternative is for more physicians to countersue. But few have the time or the resources for that.

It's just easier to hide in the men's room.

Just in jest

How, in this modern world, does one go about getting rid of predatory animals like coyotes? Well, since according to today's moralists, such things as six-guns, Winchesters, vicious steel traps or poisons constitute cruel and inhumane treatment, that would seem to present something of a problem. But never underestimate the ingenuity of today's sons of the Western pioneers. In Idaho they have found a way. There they are ruining the sex lives of coyotes by feeding them reproductive inhibitors.

And here's just another example of American know-how in action.

"Go ahead and start the job," a plumber told his helper, "but don't get too much done until I find out whether we're working by the hour or by the job."

There is apparently no limit to how far some chefs will go in order to please the epicurean tastes of their patrons. But I feel certain that up until just the other day no modern master chef has ever equaled that gourmet's delight known as roasted nightingale tongues on which the ancient Roman Emperor Nero once dined. However, where price is no object, epicurean miracles can still be performed today. And a restaurant in Boston, Mass., did just that. For only $1,000 a couple it served a small group of discriminating diners roast peacock with the feathers put back on.

Hurrying appointments

By EARL G. WATERS

Power for the legislature to make gubernatorial appointments when a governor fails to fill posts diligently has been approved by the Senate Rules Committee. A measure, authored by Sen. John Nejedly, provides authority for the Senate president pro tem and the speaker to act jointly in making appointments to offices which have been unfilled for six months.

Obviously, if passed it is not anticipated to be used for the idea is dangerously fraught with mixing the powers of the legislative and administrative branches. Further, the potential for the two house leaders to be in conflict thus thwarting the purpose of the bill is inherent in such a procedure. But, as the Senate's President Pro Tem James Mills observed, "Probably this procedure would never be employed."

Nejedly, noting that Gov. Jerry Brown has been unusually dilatory in filling many offices, said the bill was designed to prevent the governor from circumventing legislative intent by impounding policy through failure to implement it by making the appointments necessary to follow through.

As an instrument to compel prompt action on the part of the governor, however, it does seem to have merit although it would be a better bill if less time were allowed for making the appointments. Six months appears to be an unduly long time to permit an essential post to remain vacant.

While a governor's patronage has been greatly reduced over the years by adoption of the civil service system the choicest plums in government remain appointive. These include all department heads, as well as membership on the many boards and commissions. Additionally, the governor fills all judicial posts and any vacancies which may occur in constitutional offices and that of U.S. Senator.

In the 770 days that Brown has been in office he has made nearly 1,500 appointments, averaging about two a day. This makes for a tremendous workload for a governor in itself, all other duties aside.

Because patronage is viewed as an important factor in holding together and strengthening the political machinery essential to an officeholder, most governors have not needed any burrs to make them move on appointments. But Brown, who started out on a program of personally interviewing all candidates for various posts, quickly became bogged down. Some of the major posts went unfilled for more than a year. Less important ones were vacant even longer. Entering his third year in office, Brown suddenly got busy and quickly filled over 330 jobs within the first three months. But there are still an inordinate number of vacancies since many of the appointive jobs are staggered in duration throughout his term.

Also thought to contribute to the unusual time lapses in filling jobs has been Brown's penchant for appointing "minorities." In pursuing this goal Brown seems to have excluded Caucasians from first consideration as he searched for "minority" candidates who could meet the qualifications.

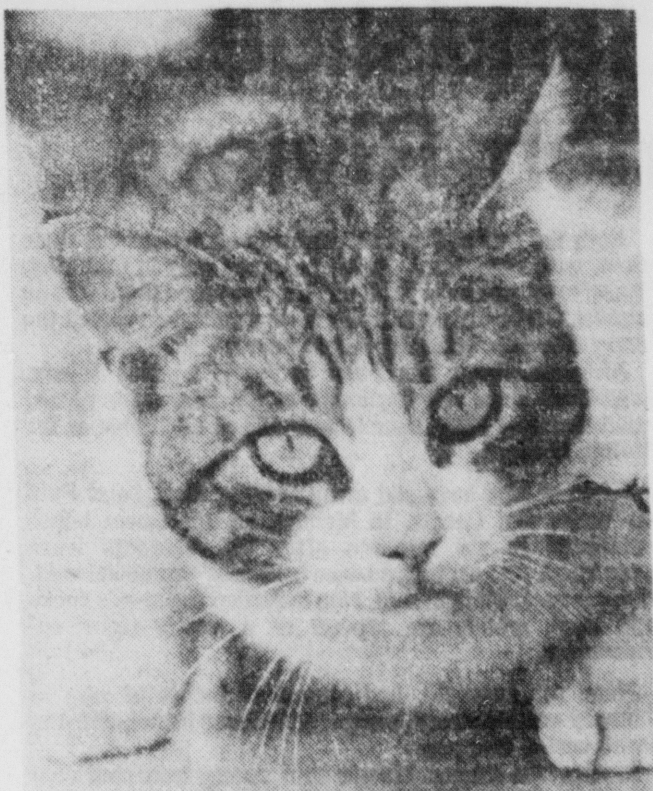

While this course of action may not have provided the state with the most qualified personnel available it seems to have achieved the aim of installing minorities. For, of those appointed 481 have been women, 148 Mexican-Americans, 118 blacks, 48 Asian descent, 13 American Indians, and 8 have been Filipinos.

Many of the Caucasians selected have met an additional requirement instituted by Brown, that of prior involvement with civil rights groups such as the Civil Liberties, Rural Legal Assistance, and NAACP organizations.

Pulled feathers grounds goose

DEAR DR. MILLER: A friend of mine just gave me a goose. It's a feathered one ha! ha! My friend told me I could keep her from flying over my fence if I pulled out some wing feathers. I'm not sure I can do that, and I'm pretty sure Goosey wouldn't like it. Will it work? If it will, I might have somebody else do it. — C.K.

DEAR C.K.: Pulling 8 or 10 primary feathers (the long ones) from one wing tip may sufficiently unbalance Goosey during flight that she couldn't make it over the fence. The feathers would regrow in two or three months, however. She might object less if these feathers were cut off instead of pulled. An added advantage from cutting them is that they don't usually regrow until the next molt. It's best done by someone who knows how, however.

Ad added caution: Unless your fence is quite high it's possible that, given sufficient incentive plus a gust of high wind, Goosey just might still soar sufficiently high to clear the fence.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Twitch, my cat, is dying to play with Crabby, my land hermit crab. Will they enjoy each other's company if I leave them together? Crabby looks at Twitch in a very skeptical fashion, but maybe if they got to know each other better? — T.L.

DEAR T.L.: Since Twitch undoubtedly considers him a potential plaything or blue-plate special, not a playmate, Crabby's jaundiced eye is justified. If your hermit has to have a partner, you can bet he wouldn't choose a cat.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Could a deep cough in a dog be caused by hairballs? He's had the cough a long time. He's quite furry, and he licks himself a lot. He's old, 14, but the doctor checked Teddy's heart and pronounced it fine. — N.B.

DEAR N.B.: While hairballs are, indeed, a common cause of coughing in cats, hair is a much less likely cause for a canine cough. While heart cough (actually, the heart doesn't cough, other parts of the canine do) is rather common in older dogs, there are a myriad of coughs which primarily involve not the circulatory, but the respiratory, system. Possibilities range from a polyp in the larynx to chronic bronchitis. But your veterinarian would, and should, search out the problem and, if possible, a solution.

For Friday, April 15, 1977

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try not to push yourself too hard today. You'll accomplish far more if your pace is a relaxed steady one.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll want to be with friends today, but choose a quiet setting for your tete-a-tete. You need companionship, not rollicking merriment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have a subtly domineering way about you today. You can take command of situations without making too much ado about it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Devote your energies today to mental pursuits. You'll accomplish far more with your brain than you will with your brawn.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may be called upon today to help someone out with a problem or manage something for them. You'll learn as much in the process as they do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Select an active companion to team with today. You'll be happier doing things in tandem with a spirited cohort.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is a good day to clean up a lot of those little projects that have bugged you — and you'll enjoy doing so.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today, socially, the action will be centered around you. You have a magnetism that draws others, particularly those of the opposite sex.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Family matters should be your first concern today. You'll have more peace of mind once you've fulfilled your obligations there.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A change of scene would do you good today. Go somewhere, where you can see new faces, enjoy different diversions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're materially motivated today. If you see an area where you can fatten your bank balance, direct your energies toward it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Leadership is your forte today. Others will realize your virtues in this direction. Assert yourself where you can take command.

Your Birthday, April 15, 1977

Ann Landers

Pointers for a husband

Dear Ann Landers: Please print these pointers for the husband who found out his wife had been cheating on him after 20 years of a happy (?) marriage. He refused to forgive her until she humbled herself and practically groveled at his feet. He signed himself, "Needing Assistance."

1. Just keep on being "a good husband and father." Nothing more. You'll bore her to death.

2. Don't listen to her problems. You do enough of that at work.

3. Spend a lot of time at your job — nights and weekends, if you feel like it. You aren't greedy, you just want to get ahead — for HER and the kids.

4. Don't throw away money on a sitter so you can take her out on a Friday or Saturday night. After all, she should be thrilled to cook for you all week and stay home and watch television every night.

5. Don't buy her a little gift for no reason. What does she need? After all, she has YOU!

6. Remind her often of her "mistake." But please remember, when a married woman is looking, what she's looking for she can't find at home. (The same goes for a married man.)

I hope guys like you never wise up, because it makes life so much easier for those of us who can sign ourselves — A Husband, Age 40, Who Needs No Assistance.

Dear Husband: You'll probably be considered a traitor to your sex, but your letter is a good one and I thank you for writing it.

Dear Ann: Our 18-year-old daughter, Nancy, runs with a group of girls who come from well-to-do families. I believe this has made her much more conscious of money and "things" than she should be. (She's still in high school, by the way. A year of illness put her one grade behind.)

Friday night Nancy had a date with a 21-year-old fellow she described on several occasions as a "dumb jerk." Like most mothers I sleep with one eye open till all my children are home.

When Nancy came in at 3 a.m., I witnessed a kiss at the door that would have made Madame Pompadour look like an amateur. When I asked her why such affection for a "dumb jerk" she replied, "He's going to buy me a $40 bottle of perfume."

It seems my daughter's mode of operation is to lead a fellow on until he gives her a lovely gift — then she bounces him.

I am horrified by her mercenary approach. Am I old-fashioned? Is this what the girls are doing these days? — Stone Age Mom

Dear Mon: Some adolescent females are eager for evidence that they can capture the male animal in large numbers. The "gift" is the scalp on the belt.

When Nancy grows up she'll discover that one nice guy is worth 40 "dumb jerks" and she'll put away her geiger counter.

CONFIDENTIAL to On A Clear Day You Can See Catalina: By all means TELL her. Women who sit on public platforms should cross their ankles — not their knees.

The latest in dog training

Last summer, we entertained visitors who pulled into our driveway with a luxury camper and two dogs.

Just before they left, our friend reached in and brought out a plastic bush with a couple of fake flowers entwined, attached to a wooden stand. It looked like a neglected grave.

"What's that for?" I asked.

"Watch this," he said.

The dog went over, sniffed the bush, then came over to me and went to the bathroom on my shoe.

"It isn't perfect yet," said the owner, "but he's getting the drift."

Everyone talks about the toilet training of dogs, but no one has done anything about it until now.

A trio of men, Don Logue, of Kingman, Ariz., and Dr. Wayne Knochel and Bob Traeger, of Rochester, Ind., have invented a dog toilet that will, in their words, "bring the dog into the 20th century." (They've always been here, but you just can't follow them too closely.)

The device is about 18 inches wide, 36 inches long and 8 to 10 inches high and consists of a plastic housing and an astro-turf-type belt driven by a small motor with collection and deodorizing pans underneath.

The dog steps onto the belt, makes his deposit and steps off. The weight transfer activates the motor that moves the astro-turf belt, depositing wastes in collection pans and spraying the belt with a deodorant.

Being the owner of a dog who is hard to train (he scratches on the door to come IN to do his business on the carpet), I held some enthusiasm in reserve for the project. How do you train a dog to hop onto a conveyer belt if you can't get him to recognize a tree when he sees it?

That too has been taken care of. The training of dogs to use the device is the subject of a graduate thesis being done by Craig C. Stone at Southern Illinois University entitled "Canine Training and Associated Techniques for a Fecal Disposal Machine."

The tab on the new convenience is around $400 to $500. When you consider the cost of shoveling out New York City, Chicago, L.A. and every other major city, it sounds reasonable.

The whole project gives me hope that someday a dog will come up to me in the park and say, "Got change for a quarter?"

Dr. Lamb

Chest pains questioned

DEAR DR. LAMB — For the past four to five years I have been troubled by heart poundings and palpitations, chest heaviness and sometimes chest pain under my front lower ribs, after exercising or after emotional or physical stress. I have consulted and have confidence in our two internists. They have done electrocardiograms while I was resting and after exercise, given a stress test, done blood work, tried Isordil on a temporary basis and have declared me a healthy middle-aged woman.

I'm 51 years old, 5 feet 8 and weigh 148 pounds. My blood pressure is 110 over 70. I had a complete hysterectomy in 1969. My parents are living, aged 78. My grandparents died of heart disease in their 80s.

Exercise is a part of our family. We swim year round, play tennis, walk and I ride a bike. Our habits are moderate and we do not smoke or do a thing in excess. We have la dolce vita.

Why then do these feelings persist? When it happens I try to ease off the exercise for a day or two and then do feel better. I also get some relief by taking two aspirin or a Valium at night when the palpitations interfere with sleep. They are getting worse and I am beginning to treat myself like an invalid and have almost stopped participating in these sports which I love.

My husband also has the same symptoms and he, too, has checked out in perfect health. What to do? Is there something we may be doing to cause this? Are we overdoing the exercise department? I would be grateful for your help.

DEAR READER — With the good evaluation you describe it is unlikely that there is anything seriously wrong with your heart. Palpitations and even certain forms of chest discomfort with the palpitations can occur in people who have no heart disease at all. Nevertheless, the sensations you describe are discomforting to say the least and they are real.

Exercise seldom produces such symptoms in healthy people except in people who really are overdoing it beyond the level of their physical fitness. We could take an office worker and have him do too much exercise too soon and he could develop such symptoms. He could accomplish the same level of fitness without symptoms if he progresses at a slower rate, taking months instead of weeks to get in shape.

Coffee and other drinks containing caffeine may be a factor. Since you don't smoke you can forget about cigarettes as a cause. Digestive disorders can trigger such attacks in some people. You need to be sure you don't have a hiatal hernia (hernia of part of the stomach through the diaphragm) and make some effort to correct any digestive disorders you may have such as spastic colon with trapping of gas. A good diet including adequate amounts of cereal bulk should help in that department.

Anxiety and nervousness can contribute to such attacks. A tranquilizer in these instances may help. Regular vigorous exercise may be associated with a slight decrease in potassium content which may be your problem. This can be important. To prevent this, an 8-ounce glass of orange juice a day will keep your potassium levels up.

To give you more information on palpitations I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardias. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Doubled out of trouble

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

West's double of five diamonds was most unfortunate. If he had just passed east would almost surely have gone to six clubs. That contract would go one down against a heart lead and would make against the lead of any other suit.

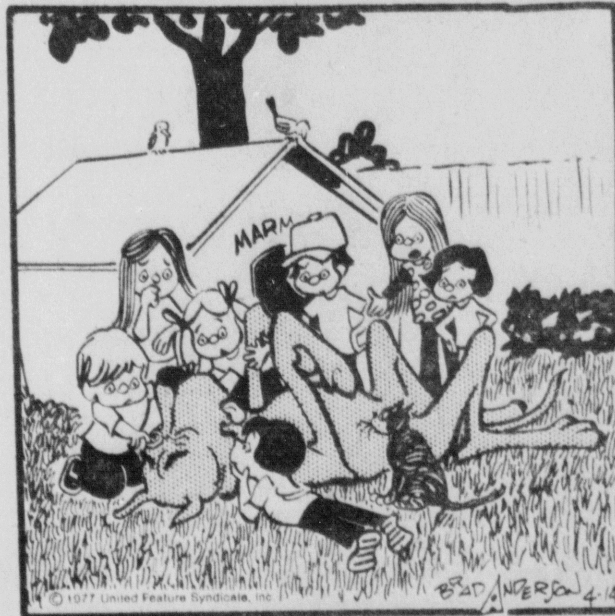

East might well have taken the double out, but he decided to trust his partner.

South decided that the doubler would have at least three diamonds and probably all four. He also counted an easy 11 tricks against a 3-1 trump break and a way to handle four trumps in the West hand provided West had to follow to two hearts. All that would be required would be a series of unblocking plays.

South started the series by ruffing

CREDIT

Q. "Sometime back, 6,000 businessmen nationwide received credit cards that invited them to visit a house of ill repute in Chicago and pay on the installment plan. Was that legitimate?"

A. Legitimate? Do you mean did it really happen? Did indeed. Subsequently, four men were convicted in a U.S. District Court of using the mails to promote prostitution, and their $3,000-a-month business folded. There are probably 6,000 intriguing souvenirs floating around out there somewhere, still.

A. Nor right, sir. Color has nothing to do with it. Some of the palest blends have the heaviest body. Or so say the experts.

Q. "What proportion of the school teachers quit that line of work within five years?"

A. Three out of five.

GETTING WARMER — Two young women wade and splash in a pool near the Capitol recently as the temperature climbed into the mid-80s for the first time this year in D.C.

Heavy rains, landslides threaten French Riviera

NICE, France (AP) — An increasing number of landslides are threatening some of the most beautiful and expensive real estate in the world — on the French Riviera from Cannes to the Italian border.

Unusually heavy rains on the magnificent French seacoast have caused landslides on the steep slopes that have damaged houses and apartment buildings and cut off highway and railroad traffic.

"You would be oversteering the case to say Villefranche is about to tumble into the Mediterranean," Nice University geology professor Philippe Mangin said of one Riviera city. "But the fact is there are an unbelievable number of private and multiple dwellings whose walls and foundations have become fissured in the last few months."

Mangin says pipes and conduits are threatened as well and described this as a peril which could result in great damage.

Mangin, often a consultant on state building projects on the Riviera, said in an interview that the immediate crisis might end by the beginning of June if normal rainfall patterns resume.

But he stressed that some projections indicate the possibility of colder, wetter weather along the Mediterranean coast over a five-year period and said this would involve incalculable dangers.

The landslides have already affected some aspects of tourism and daily life along the Riviera. Early in the morning Jan. 5, some 1,500 tons of rock fell across a main France-Italy highway at Eze-sur-Mer, about 22 miles from the Italian border.

Both the railroad and the highway have been cut since then, with road traffic to be reopened only in mid-May. Massive tie-ups have resulted. Last weekend there was an almost total traffic standstill when a rockslide closed the main alternate route for a few hours.

Although there has been only one serious injury, landslides since the beginning of the year have closed roads north of Nice, near Grasse and at La Turbie at the Italian border.

Parts of hills have slid away at Beausoleil, Saint Paul de Vence and Cabris. In Menton, an apartment house crumbled in six minutes after its residents were evacuated. An apartment house next door was abandoned. In each case, Mangin said, rain unsettled the area's rocks and clay, which are typical of a vastly drier environment.

Nice, for example, had almost 16 inches of rain in January and February, compared to three inches over the same period last year.

Much of the danger, Mangin says, comes from poor construction of newer buildings erected in a French vacation home boom. Old buildings appear to hold up better than new ones "often just thrown up indiscriminately," according to Mangin.

"There are no rules, really," he says. "Construction permits are given out right and left and a geologist is rarely consulted. When construction is completed, there is nothing in French law to stop the sale of apartments even if the building doesn't get the government's certificate of conformity."

Pilot's final words: we're putting it down on highway

ATLANTA (AP) — "We're putting it down on a highway," Southern Airways pilot Capt. William McKenzie said on the radio. "We're down to nothing."

Those were the last words in a series of tape recordings released Wednesday by the Federal Aviation Administration, which is investigating the crash of the DC-9 piloted by McKenzie. Seventy persons died in the April 4 crash in the community of New Hope, about 35 miles northwest of Atlanta.

The recordings were conversations between McKenzie, of LaPlace, La., and the FAA controllers. McKenzie and First Officer Lyman W. Keele of East Point, Ga., were among those killed.

Jack Barker, regional FAA public affairs officer, said McKenzie never actually declared an emergency aboard the ill-fated Flight 242.

"The FAA treated it as an emergency, however," he told a news conference. "But as far as the pilot declaring an emergency, the pilot did not do that."

The most dramatic segment of the conversations between McKenzie and the Atlanta control tower came just before the crash. It went like this:

McKenzie — "We've lost both engines. How about giving us a vector (turn) to the nearest place. We're at 7,000 feet."

The controller directed McKenzie to turn to the right for an approach to Dobbins Air Force Base at Marietta, Ga.

In the only recording of Keele, the first officer, a voice said: "I — I can't tell — tell you — the implication of this — we only got two engines and how far is Dobbins?"

Tower — "Southern 242 — 19 miles."

McKenzie — "We're out of 5,800, 200 knots."

Tower — "Southern 242, do you have one engine running now?"

McKenzie — "Negative. No engines."

The tower told McKenzie he was 17 miles west of Dobbins.

McKenzie — "I doubt if we're gonna make it, but we're trying everything to get something started."

The tower directed Southern 242 to Cartersville, Ga., but McKenzie said, "We're putting it on a highway. We're down to nothing."

The tower replied, "Putting it down on the highway. Roger."

Lawmen reluctant to give gals 'male tasks'

WASHINGTON (AP) — With prodding from the Justice Department, police chiefs are slowly admitting women to the patrol assignments traditionally labeled "for men only."

Despite government legal efforts, women still comprised only 2.1 per cent of the estimated 300,000 local police officers at the last count in 1975.

Though government pressure generally has been successful, department officials say they don't have a big enough staff to undertake any massive campaign.

In interviews Tuesday, officials discussed the results so far and the outlook.

The department has two ways of forcing police agencies to hire more women and give them an equal chance for all assignments. The Civil Rights Division can bring lawsuits and the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration can threaten to cut off federal crime-fighting money.

In the past five years, the Civil Rights Division has gone to court against 19 local and state police departments, said David L. Rose, chief of the division's employment section.

Eight cases were settled after the departments promised better treatment for women. Those involve the Maryland and New Jersey state police, the sheriff's office in Pima County, Ariz., and city police in Miami, Fla., Jackson, Miss., Memphis, Tenn., Wichita Falls, Tex., and Pompano Beach, Fla.

Judges will consider proposed settlements in cases against the Michigan state police, the San Diego County, Calif., police and the Seal Beach, Calif., police.

In a suit against the Philadelphia police department, the government won its case after a trial.

The government went to trial in its suit against the Philadelphia police department but police officials negotiated a settlement before a verdict was announced.

The Philadelphia case has turned out to be one of the most troublesome, Rose said.

Department lawyers have gone back to court to force the city to live up to its commitments. On Monday, the government accused the city of violating the agreement by scheduling an all-male class of 100 to enter the police academy later this month.

The department argues that the city agreed to hire one woman for every four men hired and that the new class of recruits must include women.

Australian seaman wrecks patrol force

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A 16-year-old seaman destroyed 12 of the Australian navy's 13 antisubmarine patrol planes by throwing a lighted paper plane into a fuel-soaked hangar, a prosecutor told a navy court martial today.

The prosecutor, Capt. E.J. Rice, said Able Seaman John Trent told investigators he opened the fuel tanks of two of the planes, then "got a piece of paper, made an airplane, set it alight and threw it."

As he ran out of the hangar, "the whole place exploded," Trent told interrogators. "I really do not know why I did it. I do not know what came over me."

Answering questions at the hearing today, Trent said he suffered from headaches and hallucinations for some time. He said a specialist had taken blood and spinal fluid samples in an attempt to trace the cause of the headaches.

The 12 twin-engine Grumman tracker planes were destroyed at the Nowra naval base near Sydney in December. The 13th plane was being overhauled in Sydney at the time.

The prosecutor said Trent was identified by fingerprints on an automatic sprinkler system in the hangar.

The United States provided second-hand planes as temporary replacements for the Grummans.

Economic expansion rate encouraging

By R. Gregory Nokes
Assoc. Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy apparently expanded at a rate of about 4.5 per cent in the first three months of this year, nearly double the gain of the previous three-month period, government economists say.

The increase, calculated at an annual rate, is encouraging to the Carter administration. These same economists were predicting just a few weeks ago that first-quarter economic growth would be less than 4 per cent because of the hard winter.

Four per cent growth is considered the level necessary to keep unemployment from increasing. Gains above that level should reduce the nation's jobless rate, which was 7.3 per cent in March.

A strong economic rebound in March improved the economic outlook, several economists said Tuesday. They said it was fueled partly by advance spending by consumers of the $50 rebates they have expected from Washington.

They said that if Congress now fails to approve the rebates, consumers might slow their spending and reverse the gains of the first quarter.

The Commerce Department will release official figures on first-quarter economic growth, as reflected by the nation's gross national product, on April 20.

As recently as March 30, Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps said GNP growth would be less than 4 per cent, at an annual rate, in the first quarter.

But Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said Tuesday he thinks the economy is now growing at a rate of between 4.5 to 4.75 per cent, and economists said Mrs. Kreps is now being provided with new information from her advisers showing a rate of growth above 4 per cent.

The economy grew at only a 2.4 per cent rate in the final three months of 1976.

An economist who did not want to be identified said the figures on consumer borrowing and spending show that consumers are willing to go into debt to buy things. He traced this development to the anticipation by consumers that they can repay their borrowing with the rebates they receive.

While a $50 rebate per person doesn't seem like much, he said, it translates into a $200 rebate for a family of four. "That's not enough for a down payment on a new car, but it will buy a television set, a washing machine or a new suit of clothes," he said.

While government economists profess not to be worried that the rebates will add to the nation's already serious inflation problems, some private forecasters are not as optimistic.

Norman Robertson,

chief economist for the Mellon Bank in Pittsburgh, estimated Tuesday that prices would rise more than 9 per cent by 1979 if the rebates are approved. He said prices are likely to increase at an 8 to 9 per cent rate by the end of 1978.

Cities paying hefty price for picking up stray pets

By LEE MITGANG
AP Urban Affairs Writer

Cities are beginning to pay more attention to what, surprisingly, is their residents' No. 1 complaint — the stray dogs and cats that are increasingly in control of streets and alleyways.

There are about 25 million stray dogs and cats roaming the nation's cities, estimates Friends of Animals, Inc., a nationwide volunteer agency. Between four million and six million of them are destroyed each year.

Americans have about 23 million pet dogs and 27 million pet cats, the agency said, but unwanted pets can become strays. Or the pet might have a litter of puppies or kittens for which owners can't be found, so the young animals are left to their own devices.

Streetwise strays often collect in the packs of five or six that are familiar sights in rundown urban areas, as well in some rural areas where they are blamed for killing livestock and wildlife.

Friends of Animals has just finished a survey of how 41 cities handle stray animals. The group said Wednesday that these cities spent a total of $13.9 million last year to round up and kill strays. Chicago, for instance, spends $1 million a year for animal control.

The problem has become so severe in some places that Pittsburgh residents, for example, say that fear of being bitten by a pack of dogs is as much a reason for staying away from certain sections of town as fear of being robbed.

An earlier survey of 1,031 city mayors and councilmen, conducted by the National League of Cities, showed that city residents complain about the stray animal problem more than any other. Sixty one per cent of the mayors responding said it was the biggest gripe in their city, far ahead of the second biggest source of complaint, traffic control, which 40.7 per cent cited as a major problem.

Dade County (Miami), Fla., with an estimated stray animal population of 130,000, spends $738,000 and destroys about 20,000 animals a year.

Most cities run their own animal control programs. Others allot tax money to local humane societies, or finance joint city and private humane society programs.

New York City, usually among the biggest spenders for other programs, is the only large city that doesn't spend anything on animal control. The ASPCA has been left on its own to deal with New York's estimated 400,000 stray population. The group told city officials a week ago it needed $2.1 million to continue its work and threatened to give up unless city money was appropriated.

A few cities have begun programs to reduce the problem, rather than just keep up with it. The model is Los Angeles, which runs three city subsidized clinics for spaying and neutering pets.

Jim McNamara, who administers the city's animal control program, says Los Angeles spends $2.7 million for the program, $340,000 of which goes to the clinics.

For operations for which a private veterinarian might charge $100, the city clinics spay females for $17.50 and neuter males for $11.50.

Parents sue school board over poll; charge prying

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The parents of a kindergarten-age child have poured their savings into a court fight against a school poll they say illegally "pries into what Ma and Pa are doing at home."

Terry and Violet Thetford filed a lawsuit claiming violation of privacy against the school board here, which has tried to ward off objections to the survey by deleting other questions about the sex lives of students and their parents.

Some of the remaining questions asked of children in grades 5-12 ask how much their parents drink and whether they fight at home.

But the Thetfords, whose daughter is too young to take the test, say the deletions have not overcome their objections to the 32-page survey given to about 250 students on a voluntary and confidential basis.

"We've emptied our savings account, but we really believe in the right to privacy. There's no telling what they'll ask when our child is in the fifth grade," said Mrs. Thetford, 27.

The school district denied the survey was an invasion of privacy and said it was prepared in response to increasing vandalism. It seeks to determine what kind of student services are needed to help thwart rising juvenile delinquency.

State's farmers in an uproar over marketing order system

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Farmers' rumbles of discontent are growing louder over the state's multi-million-dollar marketing order system of regulating California's massive agriculture industry.

Lettuce, avocado and raisin growers are talking about pulling out of the market order program, a showpiece of California farm law for 40 years.

Those orders affect research, promotion and, in some cases, crop quality control and are approved by the Department of Food and Agriculture and a majority of the growers affected.

Some members of the boards which administer marketing orders for some 34 other farm products are also unhappy at the prospect of being required to reveal their incomes and property holdings under a 1974 state law.

"We have been quite disappointed and discouraged by our state government's legislative and administrative attitude toward agriculture and marketing orders in general," says Frank Light, president of Sun-Maid Raisins.

Farmers say the Brown administration has been knuckling under to the consumer lobby and farm worker leader Cesar Chavez by adding public members to the boards.

Consumers say farmers are using state marketing orders to enrich themselves at consumers' expense.

Emile Loe, since Jan. 1 in charge of administering the marketing order program for the state, says the program will survive.

He says the crossfire from consumers and farmers is more due to the mood of the times than to anything the Brown administration has done, or not done.

"Whoever is sitting on the throne when such an attitude develops is the target of criticism," said Loe.

Under the state Agricultural Marketing Act of 1937, the state can require all farmers who produce a certain product to contribute money to promote sales of the product, conduct research that will improve it, or in some cases, control production and set minimum quality standards.

First, the state director of agriculture must have approved the proposed program, and a majority of the farmers must have agreed to contribute to it.

Once a marketing order has been approved, it is administered by a board, which until recently consisted entirely of farmers who produced the product. At consumer insistence, the Brown administration recently added one public member to each board.

Farmers say they put up the money, so why should consumers and the state agriculture director tell them how to spend it?

Consumers say it's really their money, since they buy the farmers' products, and they claim farmers have ignored their interests in some ads they have run, some research they have financed and some production controls they have imposed.

The agriculture department says it must have some say, since it must collect money, even from farmers who have voted against a marketing order, and because it is responsible for protecting the public interest as well as the farmers' interest.

Here is how one of the industry's oldest marketing orders works, for example. Last year, cling peach growers contributed $3.50 a ton toward the industry board, for a total of $2,068,500.

With $500,000 carryover from the previous year, the Cling Peach Advisory Board budgeted $2.6 million for promotion and $249,000 for all other activities, including $141,000 for research.

Under a separate order, cling peach canners contributed $1.20 a ton for a total of $709,000 — most of which they budgeted for grading of peaches and inspection at farm sites.

One minor point of contention recently has been that the salaries of some marketing order board executives are exceeding the $37,920 annual salary of the state director of food and agriculture.

Ralph Pinkerton, who runs the avocado order, earns $43,120, and Douglas Fisk of the Dairy Council makes $39,060. The boards set their executives' salaries, but the department director has a veto.

Loe says the department resists high salaries for market board executives because "salaries should relate to the activities of the board," and most boards are limited to promotion and research activities.

The boards that impose quality controls are the special target of consumer groups, who say such controls drive up the price and waste food. But some farmers say they must have quality controls.

"Without the deterrents provided in the market orders, the urge to rush to market first and flood it with green pears and junk fruit would effectively kill all our markets," said Mortimer French, president of the California Canning Pear Association.

"We are going to have to fight to support the concept of better market quality through industry-financed and controlled market orders."

Republicans face more problems

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's right there in the numbers. Unless the Republicans can get their act together quickly, the Democrats are going to have a free hand in drawing most of the political maps that will shape congressional elections for a decade.

That GOP problem is not so visible or dramatic as the loss of the White House or the eroding Republican base in Congress. But it is no less serious.

For the Republican party is increasingly vulnerable at the base of the political pyramid, the state legislatures, where the new boundaries of congressional districts will be drawn after the 1980 census.

The Democrats now control both houses of the legislatures in 36 of the 50 states. Republicans have full control in only five. Eight are divided, and Nebraska's one-house legislature is elected on a non-partisan basis.

There are 7,562 seats in the 50 state legislatures, and Republicans hold just over 30 per cent of them. They hold majorities in only 19 of the nation's 99 state legislative bodies.

The challenge facing the Republicans is to reverse that trend and fashion a comeback in the next two elections. After that, the census will require realignment of congressional districts in states that gain or lose House seats as a result of population shifts.

That is sure to include some of the biggest states, and the party that can draw the boundaries for House elections can build in an advantage for its candidates.

It's not as easy, or as blatant, as in the old days, when politicians could map districts that looked like pretzels to benefit their candidates. But skilled draftsmen still can devise boundaries for partisan advantage.

"The problem is acute now, not just for 1980, and it's got to be dealt with," says Republican national chairman Bill Brock.

Brock says the Republicans already are at a disadvantage because of past redistricting. As evidence, he cites last fall's elections when, Brock says, 43 per cent of the vote in House races was cast for Republicans, but they won only 33 per cent of the seats.

But Brock said his concern goes beyond the redistricting problem.

In effect, the legislatures are the farm system for the national political parties, the place where future state and national candidates get started. President Carter was a state senator before he became governor of Georgia.

"That's where you create a talent base," Brock said. "If you haven't got legislative candidates, you're not pulling people into the party."

So the Republicans are mounting a special push to make headway in the state houses in 1978 and 1980 elections. "It is the essence of our program," Brock said. "This is the priority of the committee."

Brock said the party's local campaign division will have a budget of about $650,000, a substantial portion earmarked for the legislative effort. He said that will be increased in 1978, and the national party will provide some campaign funds to help GOP candidates in selected legislative contests.

We can't do much more than provide the initial seed money for a candidate," Brock said. "It's more symbolic than anything else. But it's amazing what a little bit of support will do ... when somebody is running for the first time."

He also plans to assign fulltime organizers to about 45 states, where they'll help with advice and in recruiting candidates. A black consulting firm already is in the field, under contract to the GOP, trying to find and enlist Republican candidates in minority areas.

So far, the Democratic National Committee does not have a special program aimed at electing state legislators. An official said they may launch one later.

Today is Thursday, April 14, the 104th day of 1977. There are 261 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1865, President Abraham Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth at Ford's Theater in Washington. Lincoln died the next morning.

On this date: In 1775, Philadelphia Quakers under Benjamin Franklin organized the first society for the abolition of slavery.

In 1890, delegates to the Washington conference of American states created what was to become the Pan American Union.

In 1912, the ocean liner "Titanic" struck an iceberg in the North Atlantic shortly before midnight. The ship sank 2½ hours later, with the loss of more than 1,500 lives.

In 1931, King Alfonso of Spain went into exile and the Spanish Republic was proclaimed.

In 1945, in the Pacific war, U.S. B-29 bombers pounded Tokyo and the Japanese imperial palace.

Ten years ago: General William Westmoreland, U.S. Commander in the Pacific, said he could not see any end to the Vietnam war.

Five years ago: Four persons were killed by urban guerrillas in Uruguay.

One year ago: Patricia Hearst agreed to testify against members of the Symbionese Liberation army in an apparent move to get judicial leniency.

Today's birthdays: Actor John Gielgud is 73 years old. Actress Julie Christie is 36.

Thought for today: A woman with her hair combed up always looks as if she were going some place — either to the opera or the shower bath — Orson Welles.

Ban on plastic 6-pack holders sought in bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Holders for six beverage containers in a pack would be outlawed unless they are biodegradable, under a bill approved by the Senate Natural Resources and Wildlife Committee.

The bill by Sen. Omer Rains, D-Ventura, was sent to the Senate floor Tuesday on a 7-2 vote.

An aide to Rains said it was aimed at outlawing plastic six-pack holders that do not decompose naturally after being discarded.

Robbery is not funny

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Fidelity National Bank is waiting for two employees to bring back the $380,000 they took April Fool's Day.

The two allegedly handcuffed another worker in the bank vault Friday, piled bills in two large canvas sacks, and fled.

The handcuffed worker thought it was a bizarre April Fool's joke, authorities said, but after waiting three hours he managed to trigger an alarm.

Police said Monday they were after Donovan P. Rome, 27, and Patrick Hamilton, 26, on robbery and felony theft charges.

CBS settles antitrust charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The state and CBS Inc. have reached a settlement concerning alleged violations of antitrust laws by subsidiary CBS musical instruments, Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger says.

Under the settlement, the firm must not force musical instrument dealers to charge certain retail price for CBS guitars, electric piano keyboards and drums, Younger said Thursday.

CBS also agreed to pay $20,000 to the state and $55,000 to the attorney general's office for the costs of the case.

Ammo theft admitted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An 18-year veteran of the Secret Service, indicted on felony charges of stealing 18,500 rounds of ammunition from the agency's Seal Beach firing range, has pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor in the case.

Frederick Nagel made the plea to the lesser charge Tuesday before U.S. District Court Judge

Matt Byrne.

Under the misdemeanor charge, Nagel could receive up to one year in jail and a $1,000 fine. Sentencing was scheduled for April 25.

Nagel was indicted in February by a federal grand jury of stealing the ammunition for his personal use and for resale.

Kenya, Uganda waging war on new breed of fortune hunters

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Kenya and Uganda are waging an escalating war on a new breed of fortune hunters — coffee smugglers risking death to cash in on the sky-high prices of "black gold."

The growing drain on one of their most lucrative exports has forced the East African neighbors to set aside their differences and join forces against the rampant smuggling of Ugandan coffee into Kenya.

Armed helicopters patrol Lake Victoria, coffee convoys cross the border under guard and smugglers are threatened with firing squads.

But observers say hundreds of tons of Ugandan coffee are still smuggled weekly into Kenya and the racket is not likely to abate as long as prices on international markets are so high and the low value of Ugandan currency makes the smuggling worth it.

The spectacular rise in prices on international coffee markets over the past 18 months came amid fears of shortages after frosts damaged crops in Brazil, the world's largest coffee producer, and civil war ravaged Angola, another big exporter.

In recent weeks: —Nairobi press reports have told of gun battles between gunships and well-armed smugglers crossing Lake Victoria in canoes. Some canoes have been sunk and their occupants drowned.

One report said a band of smugglers shot down a Ugandan helicopter, killing one soldier and wounding another. Other soldiers rounded up the bandits, took them to an island and roasted them alive under sacks soaked in gasoline.

—Uganda radio reported this week that 24 persons caught trying to smuggle out 500 bags of coffee would be executed by a firing squad. Under the "Economic Crimes Tribunals Decree," anyone diverting coffee and other valuable commodities faces summary execution.

—Until two weeks ago, few road convoys transporting landlocked Uganda's coffee to the Kenyan seaport of Mombasa ever made it. Armed gangsters hijacked virtually every convoy.

Kenyan transport authorities and police finally agreed to provide armed escorts for the convoys on condition they travel only by day. Two convoys, each carrying about 500 tons of coffee, have rolled into Mombasa in the past week under heavy armed guard.

But despite the crackdown, observers say the smuggling will go on. The bulk of the coffee is ferried at night by canoe on Lake Victoria, which runs through southern Uganda and western Kenya.

"It is simply impossible for the Ugandan authorities to patrol the entire lake," one coffee farmer here said. "And with the international price for the green beans being what it is, you can hardly expect smugglers to call it a day now."

Some coffee is also carried across the border on foot, and some smugglers have been caught ferrying coffee aboard huge oil tankers. And the bandits who used to hijack truck convoys appear to have successfully switched tactics since security was tightened.

There has been a spate of thefts at coffee factories along the border and some residents there are known to be processing coffee in their homes, using hand machines, and then selling it.

Observers here say the flourishing racket results mostly from economic chaos in Uganda and at first was largely a Ugandan problem.

Kenya was prodded into action when reports, none confirmed, began spreading that smuggled Ugandan coffee was being sold abroad under the more prestigious Kenyan label, or that inferior Ugandan beans were being used to adulterate high-quality Kenyan grades.

Kenya has since tightened up enforcement of its Coffee Act, which makes it illegal to buy, sell or process coffee without a license, and the state-run Coffee Board has been given exclusive responsibility for marketing the beans.

For both countries, coffee is of vital economic significance.

Kenya's 1.25 million bag crop was the country's biggest source of foreign income last year. It earned $213 million — twice as much as the year before and more double the income from tourism.

Uganda produced 2.8 million bags of coffee last year, more than twice as much as Kenya. But coffee trade officials in Kenya believe as many as two million bags were stranded in warehouses across Uganda because of a shortage of rail cars and trucks to transport them.

At the same time, the plummeting value of the Ugandan shilling has made coffee growers reluctant to sell their crop to the state-run coffee board. So they have turned to willing Kenyan buyers instead.

Observers say some Ugandan beans are traded for Kenyan food, salt, cigarettes, clothing and other goods in short supply in Uganda.

Coffee Board officials here are unanimous in their opinion that the key to crushing the racket is there is no reason why they should turn to Kenya," said a board spokesman. "But until that time, we will have to live with the racket and cope with it as best we can."

Balanced picture

Textbooks should be representative

ATLANTA (AP) — Textbooks should include characters who are deaf, blind or mentally retarded so school children can obtain a balanced picture of the American population, a group of publishers and educators says.

"Ninety-nine out of 100 children's textbooks and non-print materials on the market today don't even mention that persons with exceptionalities exist," said Victor Fuchs, chairman of a 13-member consortium and assistant director of Ohio State University's National Center on Educational Media and Materials for the Handicapped.

The OSU group presented guidelines for the program Tuesday to the 55th annual convention of the Council for Exceptional Children.

"We hope that the guidelines will make publishers take a close look at their educational materials and adopt a policy of giving a more balanced picture," Fuchs said.

The guidelines call for curriculum at all age levels to reflect the 10 to 15 per cent of the population which is either gifted or handicapped.

The materials should avoid stereotypes of exceptional persons, portraying them instead in the mainstream of American life, the guidelines said.

"It is not enough to show only the deaf, blind or physically handicapped and to omit other handicapping conditions such as mental retardation," said Jeanne Kiefer, representative of the Association of Media Producers and a member of the consortium.

Arm sewed back on girl, 6

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — A 5-year-old girl remained in serious condition today after her right arm, severed by a washing machine, was sewed back on by a team of doctors.

Lorraine Thompson, of Roswell, was in the Bernalillo County Medical Center intensive care unit after nearly 16 hours of surgery on Tuesday to reattach the arm.

Police said the accident occurred when the girl stuck her hand inside an automatic washing machine at a Roswell self-service laundry Monday to grab at the moving clothes. They said they believe her arm was caught by the spinning clothes.

"I don't know how it happened," said her mother, Mrs. Charles Thompson. "Maybe somebody left a machine open or something ..."

Racial apartheid retained

South Africa refuses to open its parliament to mixed races

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — The South African government has rejected proposals that it open Parliament to persons of mixed race and repeal the ban on interracial sex relations and marriage.

The government, in a 110-page paper presented Tuesday in the House of Assembly, reaffirmed its apartheid policy of racial separation and rejected the liberal recommendations of an 18-man multiracial commission.

The commission, headed by Professor Erika Theron of Stellenbosch University, was formed in 1973 to study matters relating to the nation's 2.4 million coloreds, or persons of mixed race.

In June the commission presented the government with 178 proposals calling for far-reaching social, legal and political changes.

The government in its policy paper said persons born to parents of different races usually are unacceptable to the communities of both the father and mother.

It said, however, a special cabinet commission is investigating alternatives to the present style of government, as the commission had recommended. The government also said it would like to see the wage differential between races eliminated, and it called on private business and industry to work toward this.

Meanwhile, the government gazette announced that the report "Torture in South Africa?" had been banned. The 76-page publication by the anti-apartheid Christian Institute contained claims of police torture in sworn affidavits by 115 prisoners.

It also had details on 49 persons who died while in custody.

The Institute of Race Relations reported that the government is now restricting the movement and activity of at least 157 persons by "banning" them under the Internal Security Act.

"We believe that at this crucial stage in the history of our country, many of those who have been banned should be playing an active role in forming the future of our nation," said the institute, a private organization opposed to apartheid.

Carter to reveal inflation plans at news parley

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will use a news conference on Friday to reveal his proposals for dealing with inflation, his chief spokesman says.

Jody Powell indicated Monday at least part of the President's program will be mandatory, but declined to discuss in specific terms what the program will recommend.

Tefank-Bearden vows recited

Pilgrim Congregational Church in Pomona was the setting for the marriage of Miss Marilyn Ann Bearden of Pomona and Richard Michael Tefank of Upland. The couple was wed by the Rev. Donald B. Keepers in a double-ring ceremony followed by a reception at Tiffany's restaurant.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Bearden of Pomona. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Martin of Ontario.

Miss Becky K. Thatcher of Pomona was honor attendant and Edward J. Tefank Jr. was the best man. Other attendants were Mrs. Tammy Camera, Mrs. Ginger Eckard, Greg Caldwell, Monty Edson and Jim Spalding.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Carmel, San Francisco and Lake Tahoe and are now at home in Upland.

"I charge that the City Administrator and the Police Chief are systematically destroying the Pomona Police Department and the morale of its officers. As candidate for Mayor of the City of Pomona I will continue this attack on the 'two biggest Pomona outsiders', City Administrator Jerrold Gonce and Police Chief Richard Slaght.

"Because Slaght has made an arbitrary decision and because Gonce concurs in that decision, our Police Department is 20% below the number of police officers that are authorized in the current budget.

"While we have fewer police officers in police cars, the Chief has increased his personal staff and this has been approved by Gonce and the City Council, including my opponent, Charles Bader.

"We are short seven sergeants. In one month, there were 150 assaults on persons that had to be handled by only four police officers. For the same month, there were 500 assaults on property and only three police officers were available to handle these cases. Between 3 a.m. and 6 a.m. there are only four police cars available to patrol all of Pomona. Gonce and Slaght have made Pomona a criminal's paradise.

"In conclusion, it is interesting to note that my opponent, Vice Mayor Bader, does not feel that crime is an issue and should not be discussed in this campaign. My surveys show that the two biggest issues in Pomona today are crime and incumbents. The people of Pomona are being short-changed and Bader knows it. It is not only the policemen who are hard-pressed by Gonce; it is the many other city employees and the fire fighters who are trying to do a good job under such trying circumstances."

Pushing marriage

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I'm 25, single and happy. But, friends and my parents keep pushing marriage. They feel a single woman is doomed to misery. When I tell them I'm content they say that's because I'm still young. They feel that if I don't have children I'll have no one to take care of me when I'm old. I grew up in a large family and took care of so many younger brothers and sisters that I know I really don't want children. Do you think what they tell me is true? — D.J.

DEAR D.J.: I think you should listen to yourself and, if by some chance, you do marry, make very sure you're marrying for the right reasons. Don't marry to please your friends and family, or because you want financial support and security. These are also the wrong reasons to have children. It's not only unfair to the child, it's unrealistic. Such expectation is bound to lead to unhappiness and disappointment.

Studies indicate that single women, that is those who have never married, as opposed to the divorced and widowed, do exceptionally well in the world. In fact, a survey revealed that in personal happiness, those who judged themselves to be the most happy were the married men and the single women.

Since you're young now, it's important to set professional goals for yourself and to work toward them. Single women need to save money and to prepare for their future financially, since they're more apt to feel economic discrimination even if the equal rights amendment passes.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: We must move again because of my husband's work. We have two youngsters and this means a change in schools. They're quite used to moving and really don't seem to mind too much. Actually, they make friends fast and I think we're more bothered by this aspect than they are. I'm sorry and rather worried because the new school is a bit old-fashioned. The school in our present location is very modern, and it has all the latest equipment. My husband says it will do the kids good to get away from all the machines and back to basics. Do you agree? — P.W.

DEAR P.W.: I don't know what machines your husband's referring to. However, I believe a good teacher is still more valuable than the most modern equipment. After all, our greatest leaders, our greatest thinkers, managed to do very well in the old-fashioned little red school house.

Much of the new equipment in schools is valuable only if it is used in conjunction with a first-rate teacher. If teachers get lazy and rely on the equipment to take over their jobs, I believe children can be taught things that will not help them in later life.

For instance, children learn from a certain amount of frustration. A Columbia University psychologist, Herbert Terrace, feels that a complete lack of frustration can block the learning process. The trouble with "errorless" machines is the learning process. The trouble with "errorless" machines is that they fail to prepare students for what they're going to meet in the outside world. As every adult knows, you don't always get paid off for doing things right, and you have to cope when you make a mistake.

We learn from mistakes and we also learn from making some of those mistakes in public, in the classroom. We learn to be tolerant of the errors of others and of our own. Try to be enthusiastic about the new school and your children will reflect this view and consider it an adventure. If they have this attitude, they'll probably do well.

DEBRA VERRET

May rites charted

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Verret of Pomona announce the engagement of their daughter, Debra Anita, to Glenn Kevin Grigsby of West Covina.

The bride-to-be attends Mt. San Antonio College. She is a 1975 graduate of Claremont High School.

Mr. Grigsby, son of Mrs. Helen Grigsby of West Covina, is employed by U-Tex Enterprises of San Gabriel. He is a 1975 graduate of Edgewood High School in West Covina and attended Mt. San Antonio College.

The couple will be married May 14 at Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic Church in Claremont.

GOSH Chalk Talk from Griswold's Old Schoolhouse

Activity here is "building" to a feverish pitch — our crews have been kept busy from morning til nite expanding shops — Shirts, etc. has moved to larger quarters upstairs, now with a bigger line of etceteras! Cook's Nook is downstairs with batches of new cookware and accessories. Our award-winning resident goldsmith, Barrett Reese, now has a larger workshop with more display space, and Le Petite Factorie is now twice its original size, with twice the adorable clothes! The Art Gallery is also getting a new "picture" window. Not only are our shops expanding, but 2 new tenants are due to move in shortly — a book shop and a unisex clothing shop! They're waiting for the next big development: due to the demand for shops here at the School House, we're moving our offices OUT! We'll soon occupy a large building next door where you can locate all of our "main office people" in one place — hopefully at one time! The big move will leave lots of free space for new shops, so if you've been looking for the right spot, here's your chance! Have you seen the new information kiosk out on the patio? You can find directions or all the latest out there.

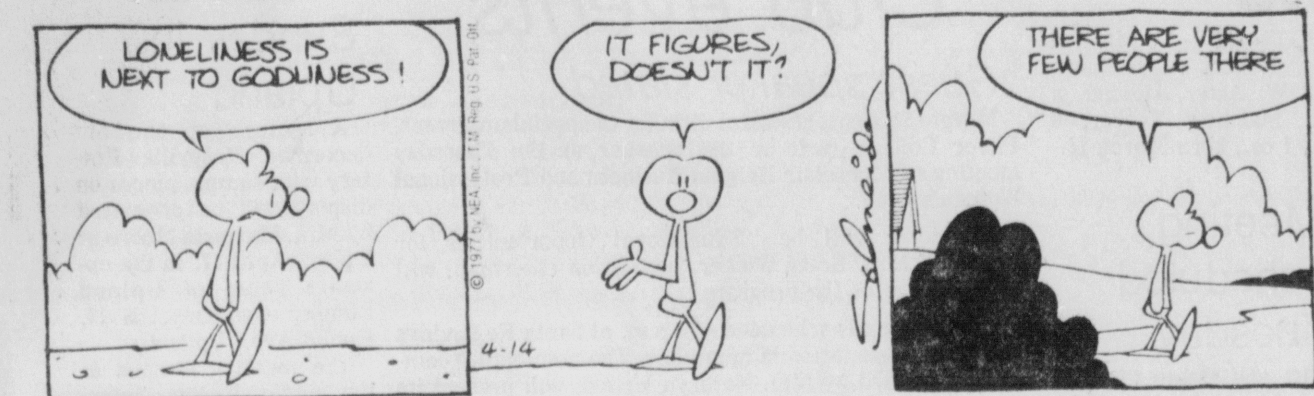

Party time Fri. afternoon! The BOTA BAG, Griswold's version of TGIF, will start up again from 4:30-7:30 in Ramon's new lounge — every Friday! Free hors d'oeuvres, live music, and cheap drinks! Fun at twice the price.

"Talk to me..." Heard Clyde Owens and His Talking Fiddles this Sunday out on the Patio, 1:30-4:30. If you've never discussed the complexities of life with a fiddle, this should be quite an education for you (for us ALL). Enjoy that "happy talk!"

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Some snakes coil around other animals and squeeze them to death. Then they swallow them. The python is such a snake. Parts of such lands as Africa and Asia are the homes of the python. This huge serpent is among the biggest snakes living today. A python may grow 30 feet long (measure that out on your sidewalk and it'll give you an idea of how long the python is). The python has no poison fangs. It kills rats and other animals by seizing the prey with its strong, sharp teeth and wrapping its coils around the victim, then squeezing it. It does not squeeze hard enough to crush the victim's bones. It squeezes just enough to stop the victim's breathing. The python then swallows its prey whole. Its hinged jaws spread far apart to swallow animals as big as a pig. Its skin stretches and the food makes a big lump in its long body. It may take a python several weeks to digest a meal.

PEANUTS

Dance group presents annual Spring Festival

The 11th annual Spring Concert of Valley Concert Dance Theatre will be presented at Garrison Theatre in Claremont Friday at 8 p.m. and Saturday at 2 and 8 p.m.

Special guest performer will be Joanna Dihiovanna, who will dance the Grande Pas de Deux of "Don Quixote" at the evening performances only. Miss Dihiovanna has danced with the San Francisco Ballet Co. and has appeared as soloist with the Los Angeles Ballet Co. She most recently was the principal dancer with the Gene Marinaccio Ballet and has appeared in several motion pictures. Tom Hanner, a professional member of Valley Concert Dance Theatre, will dance as her partner in this number.

The company will perform, "Ballet de la Cour," a traditional classical ballet; "Home Movies and Family Albums," a campy, fun ragtime number set to the music of Scott Joplin; "Foxy," a discoteque jazz number; "Jazz II," a jazz ballet. The Junior Company will perform, "Petite Entre-trees," with music by Mozart and Beethoven.

Valley Concert Dance Theatre is a performing member of the Pacific Regional Ballet Association, an honor which enables its members to study with world renowned teachers and choreographers. The Company is evaluated each year for its standard of performance and must improve each year to remain a performing member.

JoAnn Warner, the company's artistic director, is a former professional dancer with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo. For the last 15 years, she has helped train young dancers, many of whom have gone on to careers with professional companies such as the New York City Ballet Co., American Ballet Theatre and Joffrey Ballet.

Members of the company include honor members Janine Michalski, Pomona; Dawn Butler, Brea and Tom Hanner from Anaheim. Performing members are Marilyn Griesmer, Helen Gliniak, Covina; Linda Fisher and Cuital Tuchon, Riverside; Eddie Dombrower, Long Beach; Janet Lawrence, Upland; Shari Martinico, Diane Rydzewski, Sandra Zuck and Becca Whitney, Diamond Bar; Lynn Hortich, La Verne.

Junior company members are Earline Patterson, Chino; Arlene Hairabedian, Montclair; Moira Carlson, Claremont; Diane Poirer, Julie Smith, Diamond Bar; Regina Campbell, Loralne Gonzales, Pomona; Leslie Willson, Alta Loma; Richard Frazier, Upland.

Tickets are available at the box office of Garrison Theatre. Evening prices are $3.50, Saturday matinee is $2.

SPRING CONCERT — Members of the Valley Concert Dance Theatre prepare for the 11th annual spring concert Friday and Saturday at Garrison Theater in Claremont. They are, from

Art show tonight

"Performance Mix," a three-dimensional art form, will be presented by students of Claremont Graduate School at 7:45 tonight in Libra Gallery, 12th Street and Dartmouth Avenue.

Participating in the show will be students in the "Art Performance" seminar conducted by John White, visiting professor of art at CGS. The public is invited, and there is no charge.

Other showings at Libra Gallery during April are: April 18-22, Doug Neuman, photography and paintings, and Don Gradowski, paintings; April 25-29, Diana Lee Johnson, paintings and drawings, and Patty Lurie, ceramic sculpture.

Opening receptions for each of these two exhibitions will be April 19, and April 26, from 8 to 10 p.m.

Regular gallery hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Moving To A New Home: A Bittersweet Occasion

Moving to a new home involves almost everything that's important to your life: your family, friends and neighbors; your community life, your ideas about education, your hold on family finances. Moving tears old ties apart and makes big demands of your spirit, patience and faith. All in all, it's a situation that really puts your future in your own hands. We followed a handsome, vibrant family of four as they pulled up familiar and much-loved roots in their old hometown and headed for a new life 700 miles away. Share their decision-making, the intense search for a new community, the house-hunting, the worry about expenses, the good-byes made to family and friends. It could be your own story.

Lasorda's way proves much different

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Never has the difference between the managing of Tommy Lasorda and that of Walter Alston been more evident than it was Wednesday night.

The fact that the Dodgers edged the Atlanta Braves, 4-3, on Rick Monday's eighth-inning home run, his first as a Dodger, was exciting.

But the Dodgers have been more exciting ever since Lasorda took over the reins with four games to go in the 1976 baseball season.

As predicted, the Angelenos have been more aggressive on the base paths. But another difference is surfacing.

Lasorda carries a much quicker hook than did Alston when it comes to changing pitchers. How many times have you squirmed restlessly waiting for Alston to remove a pitcher who obviously was tiring or who obviously was getting bombed?

Walter's great patience was one of his great strengths. For him it worked. But who can say that he wouldn't have been even more successful if he had been a little less patient?

We'll never know. But what works for one man doesn't necessarily work for another. Sparky Anderson, a manager so quick to yank a pitcher he is known as "Captain Hook" on his own club, is shooting for his third consecutive world championship this year, something no other National League manager has ever been able to do.

Lasorda may not be a "Captain Hook," but he may turn out to be a "Lieutenant Lift," or at least a "Corporal Quick" when it comes to changing pitchers.

Case in point.

Seventh inning Wednesday night. Game tied, 3-3, Dodgers coming to bat and Don Sutton due to lead off.

Lasorda sent Boog Powell up to hit for his pitcher. Can you picture

Progress Bulletin Sports

Pomona, California ■ Thursday, April 14, 1977

Walter Alston ever, ever, ever making such a move?

Interestingly enough, the Dodger publicity department announced in the press box, that "Sutton's back had stiffened up on him causing his removal."

Not so, according to Lasorda.

"Sutton thought he had lost something," Lasorda said. "He had to pull out of some tough situations. So we made a change."

Powell grounded out and has yet to get a hit. But Lasorda has shown that he will not hesitate to remove a pitcher, even his ace and 20 game winner.

It remained for Monday, a 31-year-old veteran of 11 years in the major leagues to supply the climactic event and admit that he was as excited as anyone.

"Even us old men can get excited," he grinned as he sat in the dugout waiting for the post-game radio show to begin.

"I got tired of not getting the ball out of the infield (Monday had grounded out in three previous at-bats). I'll be very honest. Ever since I was 17 years old, at Santa Monica High School and they were trying to sign me, I've been waiting to hit a home run to help the Dodgers win a game."

"It was a hell of a sweet victory," was the way Lasorda put it, "and they're all getting sweeter. Monday has been down. But we know he's a good hitter and will do a good job for us."

Said Monday, "There was so much fanfare about the trade (that brought him to the Dodgers). I tried not to let it bother me. But I'm only human and I was excited."

Ron Cey also hit his first homer of the season. That one, in the sixth inning, knotted the score at 3-3. Both came off Phil Niekro, the 38-year-old knuckleball expert.

By coincidence, Charlie Hough, the Dodgers' resident knuckleball artist, picked up his first victory. Niekro is 0-2.

The win was marred by what is believed to be a "possible" sprained wrist injury to catcher Steve Yeager. Yeager, who singled in two at-bats and now is nine-for-19, fell down rounding third base in the fifth inning and jammed his wrist diving back to the base.

Davey Lopes scored the first two Dodger runs. Bill Russell singled home Lopes in the first inning and Reggie Smith did likewise in the third. The Braves got an unearned in the third when Niekro singled and eventually scored on Russell's error. Pat Rockett singled in another in the sixth and Vic Correll homered off Sutton in the sixth.

Boston's Rick Middleton (16) and Kings' Larry Brown (3) go after puck shot by Peter McNab (8) and save by Rogie Vachon in NHL Playoff game Wednesday. Bruins won, 6-2.

Bruins make Kings reel

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins have the Los Angeles Kings reeling from two quick punches in their National Hockey League playoff series and Coach Don Cherry wishes he knew the secret.

"I'd bottle it if I knew," Cherry said after the Bruins jumped to a quick 3-0 lead and then breezed to a 6-2 victory Wednesday night to go up 2-0 in their best-of-seven quarter-final series.

"We played as we did at any time all season," Cherry said. "I thought we'd have a little letdown after winning that first game (8-3), but there wasn't any at all. We had a lot of life. These guys surprise me all the time."

"In both games, they just jumped out at us," Los Angeles Coach Bob Pulford said. "They got big leads and we just died. We stopped and didn't do anything."

"Losing two games is no big thing, but it's very discouraging the way we lost them. There has been no enthusiasm. We haven't bumped a soul out there and we're going to have to become more physical. We're going to have to get going in the next game at home or we're in for a long summer."

The Bruins, who took a 5-0 first period lead in the series opener, shocked the Kings again as Stan Jonathan, Terry O'Reilly and Bobby Schumatz scored within a span of 3:39 in the opening period.

Then they hiked the score to 5-0 in a 53-second span of the second period as Jean Ratelle scored on a breakaway and Schumatz hit for his fifth goal in two games on a pass from Gregg Sheppard on a two-on-one break.

Sheppard, a hard-working center, scored an unassisted goal early in the third period before the Kings spoiled Gerry Cheevers' shutout bid with a power play tally with less than six minutes left. Marcel Dionne picked up a consolation goal in the

Ross reveals elbow injury

ANAHEIM (AP) — California Angels righthander Gary Ross, complaining of soreness in his right elbow, will return to Anaheim to be examined by the team physician, Angels' spokesmen said Wednesday.

The Angels also announced that righthander Paul Hartzell will make his first start of the season Saturday night against Seattle and at least temporarily will be filling in for Ross.

Ross gave up five runs on six hits before he was taken out in the middle of the first inning Tuesday night in Oakland. The Angels lost 6-2.

closing seconds.

Despite the two convincing triumphs, extending their unbeaten string to nine games, the Bruins were far from cocky as they looked forward to the next two playoff starts in Los Angeles Friday and Sunday.

"Are you kidding?" Cherry said when asked if he expected a four-game sweep. "We caught them a little off here, but when they get that crowd behind them in L.A. they'll be something else."

"We've got to get a split out there. If we get that third, I think that maybe it will be all over. But we've got to get that third game."

Hollywood Park opens; Hawley on three winners

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Canadian jockey Sandy Hawley rode three winners before an opening-day crowd of about 35,000 persons at Hollywood Park on Wednesday, but Laffit Pincay Jr. took the $42,650 featured Premier Handicap aboard Barrera.

Pincay's mount, carrying 119 pounds, covered the six furlongs in 1:07 and two-fifths on a track labeled fast to return $4.80, $3.00 and $2.20.

Beat Inflation, carrying 120 pounds

"We've got to win four, that's all I think about," veteran defenseman Brad Park said. "They're going to have a lot of inspiration once they get back into their own building. They have their backs to the wall and they're going to come out fighting. We know it, and we know that we're going to have to come out with a bigger, stronger effort out there."

"The first game out there is going to be a big one for us," Schumatz said. "They're going to come out flying. You could almost see it in the third period tonight. They started to take the man, the body, a little more just to show us. You know darn well they're not going to give up."

with Don McHargue up, finished second to pay $3.60 and $2.40 while Fernando Toro guided Maheras, toting 124 pounds, to third and a $2.40 payoff.

Hawley piloted Degas to victory in the first race, came back aboard Goldies' Goldian to win the third and guided Karaling home first in the fifth.

The spring and summer season at Hollywood Park is scheduled for 76 days.

NHL winners keep winning

AP Sports Writer

There's nothing like a winning streak to keep people smiling during the National Hockey League playoffs. The teams that are winning these days — the New York Islanders, Montreal Canadiens, Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs — have compiled some pretty impressive streaks.

—The Islanders beat the Buffalo Sabres 4-2 for the sixth consecutive time in the playoffs Wednesday night on the third consecutive game-winning goal by left wing Clark Gillies. The triumph extended goalie Billy Smith's personal unbeaten string to 13 games over-all and to eight straight victories over the Sabres.

—The Canadiens beat St. Louis 3-0 for their 10th consecutive playoff victory over the Blues and their sixth straight post-season triumph, while extending their home unbeaten string to 36 games, with 30 victories and six ties.

—The Bruins clubbed Los Angeles 6-2 for their third straight over the Kings, and the Maple Leafs trimmed the Flyers 4-1 for their second straight at the Philadelphia Spectrum. That is impressive because Toronto had won only once in six years there before the playoffs.

The loss extended the Flyers' playoff losing string to six games, including Montreal's four-game sweep in the Stanley Cup final last spring.

The results gave the winners 2-0 leads in the best-of-seven quarter-final series. But few people on the winning sides said positive things about their chances in the rest of the games.

"If we are going to sit back and think we are going to win, we are not going to win," said Montreal left wing Bob Gainey. "We have great players, but they (the Blues) also work hard."

"Are you kidding?" asked Boston Coach Don Cherry when questioned about the prospects of a sweep. "If we get that third (victory), I think that maybe it will be all over. But we've got to get that third game."

"We know it's far from over," said Toronto right wing Lanny McDonald. "We can't take anything for granted," said Maple Leafs center Darryl Sittler.

In fact, only the Islanders' Gillies was willing to say, "It looks like our chances are good, since they (the Sabres) have to take four of the next five games."

Islanders 4, Sabres 2

New York rallied from a 2-0 deficit, scoring four consecutive goals after Buffalo had displayed power and strength in the first half of the game.

Gillies, who scored the series-clinching goal in the preliminary round and the winner in the opener of the Sabres' series, broke a 2-2 tie by netting a rebound at 8:30 of the third period.

"I'm not looking at the 2-0 lead going into Buffalo," said Islanders Coach Al Arbour, who followed with his favorite saying: "I'm just taking it one game at a time."

Don Luce and Rene Robert scored first-period goals for Buffalo before the Islanders got their offense rolling.

Canadiens 3, Blues 0

Guy Lafleur raised his scoring output to four goals and four assists in two games against St. Louis while Steve Shutt and Gainey added the tallies which backed Ken Dryden's 23-save shutout for Montreal.

Dryden, who had 10 shutouts in the regular season behind the league's top defense, said the shutout was just part of his job. "These are games where you, as a goaltender, have the responsibility not to let in any goals," he said, adding he could have used a little more work.

"You are not going to have that many difficult shots (against St.

The pair, who played together two years under John Scolinos at Cal Poly, began to sizzle in the spring after Page was acquired from the Pittsburgh Pirates in the Phil Garner trade.

They have been blazing hot since the American League season began.

As the A's subjected the Angels to their third straight loss, 9-3, Wednesday, Page blasted two home runs and a double and drove in six runs. Gross contributed two singles in two at-bats.

Page raised his average to .500 (12 hits in 24 times at bat) and Gross climbed to .400. Page has four doubles and a triple in addition to his homers.

"I'm not surprised at the way he's hitting," manager Jack McKeon of the A's said. "He showed us in spring training he could swing the bat."

USC-Irish cause television headache

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC television, Notre Dame, Pitt, Florida, Florida State, Mississippi State, the World Series and the ever-present NCAA are all embroiled in negotiations which, eventually, will result in the announcement of ABC's college football schedule.

But not before a few problems are ironed out.

—Problem—ABC wants to kick off its 1977 schedule with Notre Dame vs. Pitt Sept. 10. The Fighting Irish, good club, good ratings, vs. the defending national champs. Sounds great. But, unfortunately, Pitt is already scheduled to play Florida Sept. 10.

—Solution—Florida has agreed to move its Pitt game to Oct. 8 and both Pitt and Notre Dame have agreed to play Sept. 10. Florida, however, has demanded "a little meat on the bone," in the words of one source. It wants its game against Florida State, which has been switched to Dec. 3, to be televised regionally. That would give the Gators three TV appearances in 1977—a national game against Georgia and regional contests against Florida State and Mississippi State.

"We would not move unless we thought we were coming out of it in an advantageous position as far as exposure and income," says Florida sports information director Norm Carlson. "The whole trade is a good deal for us. We had to drive a hard bargain. They want to open with the defending No. 1 team and the probable No. 1 team. We had them in a corner if that's the game they really want."

ABC, despite some grumbling, has tentatively agreed to Florida's demands but hasn't made an official announcement, which leaves the schools in a bind. "We're still waiting," says Notre Dame SID

Roger Valdiserri. "I'm not going to print up 200,000 pocket schedules and then find out the schedule has been changed."

Another sidelight involves Mississippi State-Florida, which has already been switched from a night game to a day game Sept. 24 for TV. But Mississippi State is on probation for recruiting violations and the NCAA won't let ABC announce anything about Mississippi State until its probation ends in early September.

—Problem—ABC is televising the World Series for the first time this year and, as it turns out, Game Six might well be played Oct. 22. That is the same date that Notre Dame plays Southern Cal. ABC wants that game desperately, but to get it the network must get baseball to schedule a late start for the World Series that day.

As soon as baseball gets back to ABC, then ABC will know if it can televise Notre Dame-USC. If not, it will swallow hard and try to pick up another Notre Dame game. How about ND-Miami on Dec. 3? No good. If you have been paying attention, you know that Dec. 3 is already committed to Florida-Florida State. If ABC drops that game, then Florida might change its mind about switching its opening game Sept. 10 with Pitt and we would be back at square one.

All of this maneuvering may be tiresome but it is worth it to the schools who end up with TV appearances, especially the independents. A school gets about $500,000 when it appears on national TV and about $190,000 for each regional show. Independents like Notre Dame, Pitt and Florida State keep it all.

Report 'Tark,' Sonics meeting

SEATTLE (AP) — Jerry Tarkanian, University of Nevada-Las Vegas basketball coach, and two officials of the Seattle SuperSonics are keeping their mouths shut about their apparent meeting earlier this week.

The Seattle Times says they have talked about a job with the National Basketball Association club.

Neither Tarkanian nor Sonics president Sam Schulman nor executive vice president Zollicoffer would even acknowledge the meeting. A Sonics spokesman conceded that Schulman and Zollicoffer were in Las Vegas, but said it was on other business.

Bill Russell, Sonics coach and general manager, has one year remaining on his expensive five-year contract. Recently there have been stories speculating that he will not return next year.

Tarkanian, 47, has a 15-year college-coaching record of 422-49 but has been a center of controversy wherever he has been. He built Long Beach State into a national power before leaving for Nevada-Las Vegas. Shortly after Tarkanian moved on, Long Beach State was slapped with a three-year probation by the NCAA for over 100 alleged recruiting violations.

Kicking around

with Adrian Mercado & Willy Keo
THE GREAT STARS OF AYSO were in limbo last week (limbo meaning Easter Bunnies and egg-hunting) while the North American Soccer League pros held season-opening games in various cities.

Headlining the NASL matches was the debut of the Las Vegas Quicksilvers, who hosted the Cosmos and got much publicity from the pre-game heralding of the matchup of the Quicksilvers' Eusebio and the Cosmos' Pele . . . rated No. 2 and No. 1 respectively among international stars of the past two decades.

A ferocious desert wind and the challenges of AstroTurf combined to limit the artistry of play but it was not enough to curtail their great talents.

Eusebio was in possession of the ball for a good part of the 25 minutes he was afield but his midfielding dominance was snuffed out when he suffered a re-injury to his right instep and had to retire from the game.

Pele, leaning more to the offensive side of the game, was his amazingly reliant self, pulling off at least a dozen dazzling maneuvers and laying pin-point passes onto mates through holes that didn't exist . . . to our eyes.

It was unfortunate the two masters had to part company so early. The 11,862 fans had come to see them display their abilities . . . which they did up till the magnificent Mozambique had to be taken off the field. Pele carried on but "the duel" was finished.

The Quicksilvers' Suhnholz (formerly of Bayern Munich) also only played the first half before being injured. Suhnholz and Eusebio led Toronto to the NASL title last year and could greatly assist the Vegas team if they can stay fit in their twilight years.

Only goal of the game came from Arbaelez of Vegas whose power shot from 27 yards was apparently misjudged by former Harvard goalie, Shep Messing, who started prematurely to the far post for a shot that came straight through the middle. It looked like he stepped out of the path of the ball . . . wonder how it looked to him? The error was costly in the 1-0 Cosmo defeat . . . after two rather brilliant and gutsy saves by Messing in back-to-back shots at point-blank range. Fame is fleeting but that was immediate!

THE AZTECS STARTED OFF POWERFULLY in a 3-0 win over San Jose where 18,000 faithful Quake fans came to see the season opener . . . and minus George Best who is still recovering from a shoulder injury received in a car accident in England.

The return to form of 1975 MVP Steve David (bought from Miami this season) can be judged by his two goals and fine field play. In 1976 David scored only one goal but the renaissance appears imminent. Both his goals were served up by left wing-back Bobby Sibbald while former Tottenham Hotspur Phil Beal left his sweeper-back spot long enough to make good on a penalty kick. All three Aztec goals were in the second half.

OTHER NASL OPENERS: Hawaii downed Seattle 1-0; Ft. Lauderdale (they were Miami last year) over St. Louis 2-1; and Dallas got by Tampa Bay 2-1.

The sked ahead for the Aztecs finds them playing home games at the Coliseum starting Sunday when Hawaii opens here. Portland comes in on the 24th and Chicago on May 1; then a break May 8 and then two more Coliseum games on May 15 vs. Minnesota, and 22 vs. Vancouver. All Aztec Sunday games go at 2 p.m.

The only diversions from the Sunday afternoon schedule is Memorial Day, Monday (May 30) vs. St. Louis' American-tinged lineup, and July 2 (a Saturday) when Pele brings the Cosmos to the Coliseum, and July 30 when San Jose drops by for some Saturday savagery . . . but still 2 p.m. games.

EUROPE WILL BE AGLOW April 20 when the second legs of the European Cup semifinals will take over. In first leg games among Europe's LEAGUE Champions, Dynamo Kiev beat Gladbach in Moscow, and Liverpool defeated Zurich in Switzerland; in the CUP Champs category, Naples won over Anderlecht in Italy, and Athletic Madrid took Hamburg to camp in Madrid; and in the non-champions' UEFA Cup it was Athletic Bilbao over Molenbeek in Spain, and Juventus sinking Athens in Italy. Liverpool was alone in winning away from home. That's why they play home-and-away, folks!

THE MEXICAN OLYMPIC TEAM that lost to the California Sunshine at Santa Ana Bowl two weeks ago just bowed out of the youth tourney at Cannes, France after three straight losses. The final championship game was won by Bulgaria over France. Mexico, it must be said, lost its four stars immediately after the Montreal games. The big guns took off "right now" with professional contracts in their hands . . . or their feet? And we'll further state that when you have to face an Iron Curtain amateur team you are not necessarily facing an amateur team! An old story we are stuck with.

Braves stay atop H.L.

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

It's becoming increasingly clear that Alta Loma High is the team to beat in the Hacienda League baseball race.

The Braves, now 7-1 in league, racked up another impressive performance Tuesday afternoon, bombing Walnut for seven runs in the first inning en route to an easy 8-2 win over the visiting Mustangs.

Other H.L. results saw Ontario keep pace by edging Royal Oak 5-4 in eight innings, Sierra Vista continue to surprise by downing Bonita 6-1 and Gladstone continue San Dimas' losing streak with a come-from-behind 4-3 triumph over the Saints.

Alta Loma looked awesome in the first inning Tuesday vs. Walnut, as the first seven Braves reached on either a hit or walk and all seven came around to score.

In addition to the Braves' stickwork, their pitching wasn't too shabby either.

Charlie Balber and Steve Cuccia limited Walnut to only three hits, Balber picking up the win by going the first five innings.

Cuccia, although allowing a run in the seventh, encouraged Alta Loma coach Gary Cronin with his two-inning relief stint. It was his first mound appearance in over a month after the senior righthander had suffered from elbow problems earlier in the campaign.

With Cuccia now

relatively healthy, it gives the Braves three proven pitchers down the stretch drive. Bobby Kilmer, like Balber and Cuccia, has shown he can pitch with the best in the Hacienda.

Actually, if the Braves continue to hit the ball like they did Tuesday, it may not matter who pitches.

Brave bats racked up eight runs and 12 hits in only six innings vs. Walnut, this despite the fact that two starters left the lineup after three innings.

While he was in the game, Brian Henderson slugged a long three-run homer in the first and a long fly to right in the second. Loren Della Marna had two triples in his first two at bats and scored both times, while Mike Munoz, Dave Silva and Mike Felo also had two hits in the game.

Bob Cordova's double in the fourth and Steve Green's single in the seventh produced the Walnut scores.

Ontario stayed close to the Braves by rallying for an important win over Royal Oak.

The Jaguars' Mike Breslin squeezed home Jess Koopman, who had tripled, with the game-winner in the top of the eighth. Breslin went the distance on the hill for Ontario, allowing only six hits. One of those was a two-run homer by Roman catcher Chris Lancaster.

Sierra Vista's Kyle Etchinson limited struggling Bonita to only three hits and fanned eight. Paul Forstner took the loss for the Bearcats.

Gladstone rallied for two runs in the last of the seventh to hand San Dimas its seventh H.L. loss without a win. Saint hurler Randy Risner's wildness set up the winning rally, as he walked two men and hit a batter. The Gladiators followed with two straight hits to win it.

Ken Muraki paced the Saint attack with a perfect

3-for-3 afternoon, while Von Suchanek had two doubles for the losers.

Bonita wins second game

Bonita High dumped Chino, 9-2, and Chaffey nipped Upland, 10-9, in Wednesday's non-league girls' softball action.

At Bonita, Penny Parrish led the victors with a 3-for-3 performance and teammate Brenda Ruffner went 2-for-4. Winning pitcher Betty Garcia went all the way and allowed just three singles as Bonita recorded its second win in as many outings.

Upland's Cheryl Enrich collected the most hits (3-for-4 including a double) in the slugfest at Upland.

Bonita will visit Montclair Friday and Upland (1-2) will play at Ontario Wednesday.

Three Poly women on All-SCAA club

Three members of the Cal Poly women's basketball team have been selected to the All-Southern California Athletic Association by the conference's coaches, reports Darlene May, SCAA basketball coordinator.

The Broncos selected to the squad are Musiette McKinney, a guard; Barbara Thaller, a center; and Joan Uhl, a forward. Uhl was selected as the SCAA "Player of the Year" by the coaches.

The new Dodge Colts.

They aren't Datsuns or Toyotas.
They're a lot of little Dodge.
And they run on regular leaded gas.

The new Dodge Colt is such a lot of little import, it's got some folks confused. Because Colt is the small car lineup with the value you'd expect in an import, plus Dodge parts and service. Whether you choose Colt coupe, Colt sedan, or Colt wagon, you'll be getting standard features like whitewall tires, reclining bucket seats, carpeting, an adjustable steering column, and more. And Colt runs on regular leaded gas. So if you're thinking about a small car, think "Dodge Colt," and you'll be thinking about a lot.
